KIP'S COUNSEL SEEKS TO AMEND CHARGE

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 24 (A.P.)).—Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Leonard Kip Rhinelander in his annulment suit against Alice Beatrice Jones, today sought to amend the criminal complaint so as to charge the defendant with defrauding young Rhinelander as to her color through her silence on that issue. Mr. Mills' request introduced such a knotty legal tangle that Justice Morschauser declined to pass on it until tomorrow. A possibility was seen by some of the legal talent interested in the case that the new problem might cause a mistrial.

'FLAMING COFFINS' ARE FLAYED BY MITCHELL

Washington, Nov. 24 (I.N.S.).—"The War and Navy Departments have betrayed the confidence of the American people by allowing a breakdown in the national defense," Colonel William Mitchell charged this afternoon in concluding his personal defense before his court-martial jury of generals.

Mitchell declared his charges of "an almost treasonable administration of the national defense" referred to the government's failure to safeguard properly Hawaii, the Philippines, the Panama Canal, Alaska or to develop aviation for use in time of war.

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Colonel William Mitchell resuming the stand today in his court martial reiterated his charges that American aviators are compelled to fly in flaming coffins.

He was taken for questioning by Major Allen J. Guillon as follows:

"Do you know that flying in the United States is twice as safe as it

LAY PLANK BRIDGE TO LYNN BOY STUCK IN MUD

Stuck in mud up to his waist while endeavoring to drag his dory across the flats, off the Lynn Gas & Electric plant, this afternoon, Robert Greenhalge, 15-year-old Lynn boy, was rescued by police and city workers, who laid a bridge of planks to his side.

The planking sank into the mud almost as soon as Patrolmen Donahue and Phelps and Archie Lavoie and Lyman Currier, city workers, placed them, and two hours were required to effect the rescue.

The lad was given first aid in the infirmary of the gas and electric company plant. He had rowed his dory out toward Nahant in order to reach a deep channel which approaches the electric plant, and tried to make a short-cut across the mud flats between the two channels.

THUG KNOCKED OUT BY HARVARD OARSMAN

John A. Crooks, veteran Harvard and Union Boat Club sculler, can use his powerful right arm off the river as well as on. Entering University road, Brookline, he was accosted by a burly individual who demanded his money "quick." The would-be hold-up man was standing at the top of a short flight of stairs in the rear of several stores facing Washington street. Mr. Crooks' answer was a hard right to the jaw, toppling the big fellow down the stairs, where he remained down. Mr. Crooks continued on his way.

PERMITS TO 200,000 KILLED

The last loophole that allowed legal escape from total aridity—speaking of prohibition and such—was plugged firmly today with a biting drastic order by L. C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement.

Now even home-made wine is outside the pale—not to mention the bottles—and 200,000 permits, issued to heads of families and allowing the home manufacture of 200 gallons of wine annually, are revoked and stand null and void, as a broken bottle.

The issuance of the Andrews' order brought a mezzo-soprano shriek from holders of the permits, and the expected result of the wine ban is a bitter battle that may churn up more indignance in the way of froth than the wine itself.

With 200,000 legal wine permits abroad, and with each permit allowing 200 gallons to be manufactured—

KREISLER IN PERIL

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The New York Sun today prints a copyrighted dispatch from Berlin declaring Fritz Kreisler, violinist, has received a letter threatening him with death unless he pays the writer 20,000 marks. Kreisler was warned that he would be killed today and a heavy guard of police was established about his home. The letter says:

"I know your generous gifts to charity, but I have never received a penny. I must have 20,000 marks and unless I receive them I shall kill you Tuesday."

FATHER AND MOTHER ON STAND TO SAVE SON

Dramatically taking the witness stand in an effort to save their son, Edward J. Heinlein, in the Waltham carbarn murder trial today in the East Cambridge Superior Court, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinlein declared they were in the room when the officers came to arrest him and that he made no move toward the bureau for a gun.

State Officer Farrar had previously testified that Heinlein looked toward the bureau for a gun.

They were followed by John McLaughlin, one of the defendants, who told of the holdup and getaway, his story being much the same as that already revealed. He said he never handled a gun in his life, but admitted he held the bag for Heinlein to your in the loot after the robbery.

The gun in question was one that

18 MONTHS SENTENCE FOR 'HEALER' GIASSON

Fall River, Nov. 24.—Sentence of a year and a half in the House of Correction was imposed today by Judge Dubuque upon Adelard Giasson, one of the leaders of the Mission of the Divine Spirit, a religious cult located on Goat Island, near here, after a jury in Superior Court had found him guilty of conspiracy to defraud the members of the colony.

Because Giasson did not benefit directly from the money contributed by the complainants, the prosecutor asked for a light sentence. The court was told that the late Eugen Richard La Fleche, sometimes known as Manseau, founder of the colony and described by its members as "The Holy Ghost" and "Master," was the real offender.

BRIDE INVITED 'BLUE BLOODS' AS GUESTS TO KIP 'WEDDING PARTY'

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 24 (I.N.S.).—Plans for the debut of Alice Jones Rhinelander, quadroon bride of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, into the elite of New York society was described today by Mrs. Marian Rich of Mt. Vernon, New York, at the marriage annulment trial brought by young Rhinelander against his wife on the ground she deceived him as to her negro blood.

Three weeks before they separated, the witness said, it was planned to present Alice to the aristocratic Philip Rhinelander, Leonard's father, to show him "what a nice girl Leonard had married."

"They intended going through the social register to choose people to invite to the party," Mrs. Rich revealed on the witness stand.

"That was Alice's idea and she

MAYOR TO BACK CLERK SUSPENDED BY HERSEY

Charles E. Thornton, for years chief clerk of the city's supply department, has been suspended by General Mark L. Hersey. The suspension has aroused City Hall and the matter was carried to Mayor Curley today with indications that the Mayor will order Thornton's reinstatement.

The point at issue between the general and the chief clerk was not revealed in the preliminary reports given the Mayor, but it was indicated that they are of a personal nature, the suspension following an argument between the two last Saturday.

"I doubt if military discipline and civil service rules will mix well," said the Mayor as he promised to take the matter under consideration and sift it to the bottom.

The news of the suspension was not generally learned until today. It was received with consternation among Thornton's host of friends in the city service, with which he long has been identified.

It is understood the argument of Saturday was nursed over the weekend by the two men, the final suspension order coming yesterday, after a heated dispute, during which, employes of the department state, they heard angry voices coming from the General's private office.

Thornton's pay is reported as about $2,800 a year. General Hersey draws $6,000 as superintendent.

COOLIDGE WILL PROBE SOFT COAL WAGE CASE

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—President Coolidge has notified John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, that the latter's complaint of violation of the Bituminous wage agreement has been taken under consideration here.

The President has asked for information and has told Mr. Lewis he will make a full reply as soon as he has developed the facts.

Meantime the White House is withholding comment on Mr. Lewis' intimation that a labor controversy may tie up the unionized soft coal fields just at a time when the anthracite suspension is becoming troublesome.

A considerable number of the larger coal mining corporations have been accused by Mr. Lewis of failing to maintain a wage scale which was drawn up in Jacksonville in 1924 to run until 1927. Several government departments had approved the making of the scale.

was going to have some of her friends there to meet the 'blue bloods.' "

Alice planned to get an interior decorator, a butler, and lots of fine dishes and silver for the big event, Mrs. Rich testified.

Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, sprung a new surprise by introducing an unexpected affidavit made by Mrs. Rich.

COUNSEL RESTS KIP'S CASE.

In this Mrs. Rich declared Alice had told her that Leonard R. Jacobs, of Rhinelander counsel, had informed Alice it was best for Leonard and her to separate because she Ku Klux Kian was becoming active in the case.

Mrs. Rhinelander did not take the stand today, as had been planned. Her attorney said he had intended calling her but had changed his plans, because of her breakdown following yesterday's ordeal.

The plaintiff rested his case early this afternoon. Thereupon defense counsel made a motion that the case be dismissed on the ground of insufficient evidence and asked that the questions be withdrawn from the jury.

"I'll let it go to the jury," said Justice Morschauser, in denying the motion. He cautioned the jury not to be influenced by his ruling on the motion.

Before Davis made this motion Rhinelander was recalled to the stand and asked if he and Alice were questioned as to their color by the license.

"No, he just wrote it down," answered Rhinelander. Alice was described as "white" on the marriage license.

While young Rhinelander appeared cool and calm enough himself today as he sat back among the spectators his own ordeal over, his wife sobbed hysterically for ten minutes before court opened. Her mother, after trying to comfort her, broke down herself.

PLANNED "SOCIAL DEBUT."

Mrs. Rich, who told of Alice's intended "social debut," said she first met Rhinelander and Alice at her home. Her husband, a furniture dealer, introduced her to them. That evening all four went to a show.

"Mrs. Rhinelander mentioned with some embarrassment that I was in evening dress and that she had a long-sleeved dress and high neck," said Mrs. Rich. "She said she had a dark complexion, being of Spanish descent."

"Did she tell Rhinelander anything about her color?"

"Yes. She said he forbade her to read newspapers. He told her, she said, that he was convinced she was white and begged her not to worry.

"She said her father said he would spend his last cent suing the newspapers for calling her a negro."

She said the plans for the intended "debut" fell through when the newspapers published details of the wedding and Leonard left his wife.

Cross-questioned as to Alice's color, Mrs. Rich said:

"Alice may be nervous and run down now, but she was a fine-looking girl when I met her first.

"I have seen lots of Spanish senoritas on the stage, but none of them as charming as Alice.

"Alice led me to believe that because she was a poor girl and dark in color that the millionaires didn't want her."

She did not explain whom she meant by "millionaires."

DINED AT JONES' HOME.

Mrs. Rich said she had dined at the Jones home in December, 1924, in company "with about twenty ladies and gentlemen of very refined appearance."

On the night of November 20, Mrs. Rich testified, Leonard called up the Rich home and said:

"I'll never forget your taking care of Alice and helping her like this."

Mrs. Rhinelander slumped in her seat at the end of her counsel's table during the testimony. She hid a drawn face behind one hand.

New York, Nov. 24 (I.N.S.)—Broadway has something new in bootlegging today. Cautious gentlemen slide up to prospective customer and hoarsely whisper: "Here they are. I got 'em. Absolutely unexpurgated copies of Kip's love letters to Alice."

One dollar a copy was the standard price, although early copies brought higher prices. There was a great demand for the mystery letters.

STOP THE PRESS ORDER SENT TO WINE MAKERS

why that totals 40,000,000 gallons of wine, almost enough to float the good old craft "Soothaw" in the drydock of prohibition.

The permits were allowed under the old revenue law, but Prohibition Enforcement Assistant Treasurer H. Olin Andrews procured new glasses and read the law over and over again until he had read it right into the Volstead law.

Then he declared flatly that the regulations prohibit the manufacture of wine, even by heads of families in the home.

Grape growing states are especially hard hit by the drastic order, for, if you don't know it, grapes are the very nub and backbone and lifeblood of real wine.

Andrews' action was forecast earlier in the week, leaving hardly time for a new batch of wine to be cooked up.

So this is the last straw in the craws of Bay State home brewers and winers, for somewhat more than a month ago the full bench of the State Supreme Court handed down a ruling that home-brewed beer containing more than 2.75 per cent. kick is illegal, even when manufactured solely for home consumption.

CHAPMAN CASE NOW UP TO ATTY.-GEN. SARGENT

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—President Coolidge is disposed to follow whatever advice Attorney-General Sargent may give in the case of Gerald Chapman, under sentence in Connecticut.

This was the only comment of White House officials today in the effort to return the notorious mail robber to Federal jurisdiction at Atlanta and release him from a death sentence imposed for murder in Connecticut.

It has been indicated that should the attorney-general decide in favor of any intercession on the part of Washington, he would recommend a pardon covering the Federal charge of robbery so that the Connecticut authorities would be free to carry out the death sentence.

RELEASES GIRL WHO STOLE TO KEEP FIANCE

Providence, Nov. 24.—Stylishly dressed and accompanied by her mother, pretty Beatrice Griffin, twenty-three years old, confessed shoplifter, and who when arrested charged her sweetheart hypnotized her so she would steal for him, appeared in district court today for arraignment with the man, Roy Mac Lean of East Providence.

She was placed on probation for four months by Judge Howard B. Gorham, while MacLean was held in $400 for a hearing December 3.

CREDIT UNION PLAN SAVES CITY WORKERS $750,000

Small loans aggregating $748,378.55 were made to city employes by the Boston Employes Credit Union during the last ten years, with a total loss of less than one-half of one per cent, the officers of the union reported today to Mayor Curley. The loans were in great part made to relieve borrowers who had fallen into hands of extortionate loan agencies, and these borrowers, directors of the Credit Union believe, were saved $750,000 in the ten-year period by establishment of the credit union plan.

CHUNG IS SAFE; ARMED, TOO, COURT RULES

Harry E. Chung, fifty-four, for twenty years a merchant and laundryman enjoying the protection of the United States Government, was upheld in Federal Court today when Judge Parmenter ruled that the government had failed to prove that he was an unnaturalized citizen and guilty of the illegal possession of revolvers.

Warns Nation of Big Fight for Air Supremacy

"From now on we shall see terrific competition for supremacy of the air," was the warning sounded today by Lieutenant Robert J. Brown, commander of the Boston Airport, speaking before the Association of Air Service Reserve Officers.

"Although America accomplished the round-the-world flight," he said, "American aviators do not hold the world's records for speed, altitude or duration.

"Every other government in the world has awakened to the necessity of developing powerful air forces."

BOWEN KISSED DEATH VICTIM, GIRL SAYS

Brockton, Nov. 24.—Relating how his dead wife's desertion had wrecked his home, George Wolschendorf today took the stand in his $25,000 suit for alienation of affections against William F. Bowen, of East Bridgewater, and told the court that from the Fall of 1922 up until his wife's death, a year later, he had never seen her alone or lived with her.

The final break came on Christmas Day of 1922, he said, when he was driven from the house by remarks Mrs. Wolschendorf made before their family. He went into detail of how his wife's love cooled during the year in which he claims she formed a friendship with the defendant.

Kisses and caresses were given Mrs. Wolschendorf, victim of the Merrimack River suitcase murder, by Bowen, Mrs. Wolschendorf's daughter testified.

The daughter, Mrs. Mildred Mountain of Somerville, was a witness for her father.

"I saw Mr. Bowen at our farm in Setucket on three Sundays after Christmas, 1922," said Mrs. Mountain. "He was there taking care of my mother, who was sick.

"On four or five occasions I saw him caressing her, both in the house and in an automobile. He kissed and hugged her."

In the absence of Juror William B. James, excused by Judge Donahue because he had to care for his turkey business, the trial continued today before an seven-man jury.

GIRLS SHRIEK AT SHEIK, FINED TWENTY FOR PEEK

The price of being a sheik in Somerville was set at $20 today, and a six-footer giving the name of George McFaugpen of Medford, paid the money in Somerville court.

Big George was arrested by Patrolman Frank J. Roche after two girls shrieked and ran down Medford street, near Magoun square.

The policeman, for several days, had been on the lookout for the man reported to be annoying women and girls in the vicinity.

Big George admitted his guilt in court.

COOK SEEKS WAY TO GET AT NIGHT CLUBS

Secretary of State Cook today asked Attorney General Benton for an opinion on the constitutionality of a proposed law giving the police power to enter and search the premises of so-called night clubs without a warrant.

"It is difficult to legally separate the bad from the good clubs," said Cook. "Of the 15,000 charters granted, only about 5 per cent. are violating the law. It is this 5 per cent. that we want to reach."

DH AIRPLANES 'COFFINS,' SAYS MITCHELL

is in Great Britain?" the witness was asked.

"No."

"Do you know that flying in the United States is four times as safe as it is in Italy?"

"No." Figures can be twisted, and moreover, our pilots are the best in the world. They can fly faulty machines with less danger than other pilots."

"You said in your statement of Sept. 5 that the pilots know they are going to be killed if they stay in the service, using old flaming coffins."

"I did."

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE.

"What old flaming coffins did you have reference to?"

"D. H.'s. (DeHavilland biplanes.) It constitutes criminal negligence to keep using flying ships of that kind."

Colonel Mitchell blamed the recent death of Captain McAvoy at Old Point, Va., who fell with a D. H. plane, to faulty equipment, and Major Guillon produced the report of the investigating board showing that the machine was flying at a "dangerously low altitude."

FAULTY CONSTRUCTION.

Taking up the death of Captain David W. Beddinger, Medical Corps, killed in a DH plane at Fort Riley, Kansas, in November, 1924, Major Guillon read the official report of the investigating board, which said the accident was caused by the machine going into a tail spin at a low altitude and that there was no evidence of mechanical or structural failure of the craft.

"D. H.'s don't up when it hit the ground," Colonel Mitchell said, "and that showed faulty construction."

The prosecution then referred to the death of Lieutenant Noble H. Beasley at Kelly Field, Tex., May, 1924, reading official reports saying the accident was due to a tailspin and an inexperienced pilot.

HAZARDOUS TO FLY.

"He was in a DH airplane," the witness said. "Another plane would not have stalled so quickly. That is the plane we have been trying to get rid of. It is an extremely dangerous and hazardous ship to fly."

Among other fatalities referred to were those of Lieutenant Arthur G. Watson and Staff Sergeant Otto Hansen in Costa Rica. They met death in a DH plane but the official report showed the machine struck a building and a live electric wire as it fell.

"Another example of a flaming coffin," was Colonel Mitchell's comment.

HIMSELF PUNISHED

Colonel Hitchell then was asked regarding the charge he had made that air officers had been "bluffed and bulldozed" so they did not dare tell the truth to Congressional committees.

"I refer to myself principally," he replied. "I was bluffed and bulldozed."

"Did you tell the truth?"

"Yes, but other officers were afraid to tell the truth."

Recalling the air crusader's charge that officers who tell the truth before Congressional committees are punished by being transferred to out of the way places, Major Guillon asked:

"Were you sent to an out of the way place?"

"I certainly was. I might add I had no command at San Antonio at all."

IN ENGLAND yesterday they sentenced a murderer to death in a trial that lasted just four minutes. Sam Johnson murdered Beatrice Martin, twenty-two years old, and Sam Johnson will HANG.

That kind of justice explains the British falling off in crime since the war. There hasn't been any falling off here.

AS EACH SUNDAY passes, the wise consider thoughtfully utterances from the pulpits.

The Rev. Mr. Aked says it is an age of skepticism and "mistrust in the hosts of the Lord."

Dr. Refland, on the other hand, says Christianity is emerging from the present crisis "grander and nobler than ever before."

Dr. Crowder says parents are to blame for the shortcomings of the young. "Vulgarities of social life" and "the breakdown of the Christian home" explain our troubles.

Rabbi Krass says the flapper must be curbed and controlled. "Must" is a big word. Rabbi Krass might as well try to draw out the Leviathan "with a hook."

DR. RUSSELL says our motto should be "A bright, sunny religion." The ancients worshipped a family of gods that kept the summit of Mount Olympus ringing with laughter.

When Isaac Vulcan appeared, limping from his forge, or when he dragged in his wife, Venus, and Mars, god of war, third angle in his family triangle, in the net which had caught them, all Heaven laughed and was "sunny."

But we do not think of laughter in a Christian heaven.

NEW YORK'S famous old church, St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, works for a brighter Sunday. Indians performed in the church. Gal-Wah-Go-Wah sang in the Pawnee dialect, and there was a sort of Greek chorus. But that's unusual.

However, if Christianity isn't exactly gay or sunny, it's ex-

Heinlein asserted was bought in a Cornhill shop two or three months before the holdup.

It was purchased by a man named Dunn—a stranger, practically, to him, Heinlein testified, and he denied that the weapon was bought only five days before the murder or that he and Dunn were one and the same man.

Q.—When did you decide to tell the truth? A.—At the outset after talking with my attorney.

District Attorney Reading then took up the gun seized in Heinlein's room on the night of his arrest.

Heinlein testified that it was purchased in "MacDonald's on Cornhill" by one Harry Dunn, a student of Newton, but a man of but brief acquaintance with Heinlein.

Q.—How long before Oct. 1 was the gun purchased? A.—Three or four months.

Q.—If MacDonald's records showed that the gun was purchased the day before the murder, what would you say? A.—I'd say MacDonald agreed to falsify his records to cover the 24-hour law.

Recess was taken at 11 o'clock, after which the cross-examination of Heinlein was continued.

Heinlein insisted that he did not lie to Captain Hilch about the money found behind the helmet in his room. He later identified a box of money coming from the carbarns, qualifying the identification with the remark that there now appeared to be more money in it than when he last saw it.

Questioned about the handles on the revolver, Heinlein emphatically denied having removed them because there were blood stains on them. He said the handle on the gun in question was nicked when he dropped it some time ago.

Questioned about the pre-robbery arrangements Heinlein denied that the situation had been previously discussed beyond a few remarks. He said that he went along with the party because he saw a chance to get some easy money.

Heinlein admitted that his share of the carbarn loot was about $140.

He testified that Peter McLaughlin, now a fugitive from justice, had promised him $200 but that he was satisfied with what he received.

Dynamite River to Get Body of Lost Girl

SEARCHERS WORK ON SUICIDE THEORY

Motor Patrol Established on Connecticut, In Hunt for Alice Corbett

Northampton, Nov. 24.—Definitely asserting that Alice M. Corbett, nineteen-year-old Smith College student, missing two weeks, is dead, authorities conducting a search for her today planned to dynamite the Connecticut River in hopes of bringing her body to the surface.

Covering an area between Hadley and Holyoke, State Detective Joseph V. Daly has instituted a motorboat patrol along the river and has directed that dynamite be exploded along the stream.

Acting on another clue, a posse of Boy Scouts and members of the local Kiwanis Club searched a piece of woods north of here today. State Detective Daly turned over to the Kiwanis Club information he received that a woman living near the Mahan river had seen a girl in a yellow slicker acting strangely there.

While this search was underway, the authorities also reached a decision to again drag Paradise Pond, on the college campus.

The authorities stated today that the missing girl was not on Mt. Tom nor in the adjoining woods. They intimated that they would arrest George Morrison, responsible for the story that the girl was hiding there and had held him up for food.

As a result of this information a posse of more than 500 searched the reservation for days. Now Detective Daly wishes to take Morrison to court to let him tell his story there. Morrison is a lineman and has been missing for several days.

Dogs which have been trying to trail the missing girl have been unable to lead the searchers to her.

Those familiar with drownings know that in cold weather and when the water is cold a body may stay submerged for weeks before coming to the surface.

A paper that goes into the home. Dependable, fearless, entertaining and educational.

CHECKED OUT

MILLION ESCAPE 1925 FEDERAL TAX

Picture above shows Miss Anna Baker, hat check girl of the Parker House for quarter of a century, sadly watching the moving out of furniture. Since the early Victorian era it has entertained within its walls historic figures in the political, literary, dramatic and commercial life of America. The plate of Royal European houses adorned its tables on state occasions and the menu of the Parker House had a great appeal to notable epicureans of this and past generations.

John Boyle O'Reilly, famous poet and journalist, was a jovial and interesting habitue of the Parker House.

The Parker House, in its day an imposing architectural pile, suffers from the inevitable mutations of time and is being torn down to make way for a modern structure.

The Divine Sarah Bernhardt always delighted in the Parker House hospitality and was an honored guest. She is shown here as "Camille."

2 INDICTED IN RUM 'BRIBERY'

The Federal Grand Jury today returned an indictment against Charles R. Bentley and Abel Jouzette, both of Gloucester, charging them with attempting to bribe a Federal officer and smuggling liquor.

The men were discovered in a liquor laden speed boat twenty miles off Gloucester by coast guard boat 179 in charge of Boatswain William J. Manzoni who gave chase and drew along side.

It is alleged that Bentley gave Manzoni $200 on a promise that he would be allowed to proceed and unload his cargo. Manzoni it is alleged, agreed and turned his craft seaward, the rum boat heading toward Gloucester.

Later Manzoni again took up the chase and overtook the liquor launch just as she pulled inside the three mile limit.

SHIP IN WITH 3,424 TONS OF WELSH ANTHRACITE

Several days late because of bad weather, the Danish steamship Josey, Captain Jansen, arrived at the Mystic docks today with a cargo of 3424 tons of Welsh antiracite. The steamer left Cardiff on October 29.

The Dutch freighter Stat Haarlem, from Rotterdam, with a cargo of 2100 tons of coke, was heard from by wireless. The ship is a week overdue and is the second to have cleared for Boston with that commodity which local dealers are buying quite extensively in England, Holland, Scotland and Germany. It sells at wholesale, car lots, from $11 to $12 a ton f. o. b. Boston.

BARBER-STUDENT DIES AT N. H. UNIVERSITY

Nashua, N[illegible] Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Vaughan Kl[illegible] a barber and member of the [illegible]r class at New Hampshire Unive[illegible]sity, died at a hospital here today following a surgical operation. A native of Providence, R. I., he was one of the first young men of Armenian parentage to graduate from Nashua High School.

Baggage Man Hurt

Andrew Egan, forty-three fell from an electric baggage truck of which he was driver, in the South Station today, fracturing his left hip. He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital. Egan lives at No. 168 H street, South Boston.

RELIC HUNTERS RUSH PARKER HOUSE

They marched in a long and flimy train, those famed personages of 3-score years back, before the eyes of "Barney" Brogan as the doors of the old Parker House closed for the last time and its run as an inn was done.

Those familiar with drownings know that in cold weather and when the water is cold a body may stay submerged for weeks before coming to the surface.

"There were many famous ones that came through this door," mused "Barney," as the rumbling sound of heavy furniture being rolled away from positions they had held through the years, reached the chill sidewalk.

For one there was John Wilkes Booth, assassinator of President Lincoln, and from whose dramatic and tragic hand the old doortender still has a treasured letter.

SITS IN BOOTH'S SEAT.

And "Barney" Brogan, guest at the last meal served in the famed dining-room, sat in the seat that Booth occupied on his visit to Boston, eight days before the fatal shot rang out from the box in Ford's Theatre and the emancipator of the slaves fell, a martyr.

But "Barney" Brogan's memories and his regrets were not alone and are not alone, for as the building wreckers swing into their labors of demolishing the hallowed structure, scores of persons haunt the place today in search of souvenirs.

Nor was the Mayor of Boston above relic hunting. One of the mirrors from the Dickens room, graced by the novelist, and scene of the Dickens Fellowship meetings, will hang in the Jamaicaway home of Mayor Curley, as he has been given this gift as a souvenir.

MANY BEG FOR TRINKETS.

Private citizens, however, were forced to beg their souvenirs from the workmen, and many an inkwell, an ash tray, a bit of paneling or other trinket in the line of relic was slipped to the outside by some workman who understood.

The new Parker House on the same site is expected to be ready for occupancy by 1927, but it will not be the same place to "Barney" Brogan, Head Waiter Henry J. Tolbert, Michael J. Morrissey, head waiter on the second floor, and the host of guests who have partaken of the old Parker House hospitality.

FIVE YOUTHS ARE JAILED IN AUTO THEFT CASES

Terms in the House of Correction and in the Lyman School were given five youths today in Dorchester Court when they were found guilty of unlawful appropriation of automobiles. Joseph Vinconana, eighteen, Glen street, and William Stanion, seventeen, Glen street, both of Somerville, were sentenced to six months in the House of Correction, and Henry A. Blades, twenty-one, Norfolk street, Dorchester, was sent to the same institution for two months. Elmer W. Welden, Lithco street, Dorchester, and John Bickford, Violante street, Mattapan, were sent to the industrial school.

Next U.S. Tax Bills to be Shrunk

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The tax reduction bill, with an estimated cut of $336,263,000, to be presented the House on the opening day of Congress, December 7, provides relief for every federal taxpayer and relieves more than a million persons from payment of any federal tax.

The principal portion of reduction is given to income tax payers, whose annual burden would be cut by $190,575,000, beginning with taxes to be paid in the next calendar year. Cuts in the normal rates and surtaxes account for most of this.

Chairman Smoot expects to have the measure enacted into law by March 1, 15 days before the first income tax payments of the new year are due.

The principal tax reducing provisions of the now completed bill include:

Reduction of the normal income tax rates from 2 to 1 per cent. on the first $4,000 of taxable income; from 4 to 3 per cent. on the next $4,000, and from 8 to 5 per cent. on the remainder.

Increase of personal exemptions from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $2,500 to $3,500 for married persons.

Increase of the amount of income on which the 25 per cent. credit for "earned income" is allowed from $10,000 to $20,000.

Reduction of the surtax rates, beginning with incomes of $10,000, so that the graduated scale would have a maximum of 20 per cent. applying on the amount of income in excess of $100,000. The present maximum is 40 per cent. applying on $500,000 and over.

Reductions in the cigar taxes would cut revenue from this source $12,000,000 annually, and $4,000,000 will be lost to the government next year if the progressive reduction in the alcohol tax is approved by Congress, this provision calling for a 25 per cent. cut each year for two years.

LIKES 'CLEAN' GAME, JUST LIKE 'DAD'

Viscount Leverhulme was in Cambridge today, looking over the big soap plant left him by his father. He is going to Canada, too, and from the size of his party and the nice places they stop at, it is evident the young lord and heir travels in lux-ury.

NEW SOAP KING HERE TO SEE BIG PLANT

Things in a business way are much more brisk in the United States than in England, Viscount Leverhulme, son of the late soap magnate and British peer, told the Boston Evening American today, a short time after his arrival in Boston.

Lord Leverhulme, who inherited millions, now is head of the Lever Brothers, soap manufacturers.

The Viscount, who has just arrived in the States, came to Boston from New York to inspect the Cambridge plant of his late father, and is at the Copley-Plaza Hotel until the end of the week, when he will leave for Canada.

Accompanying the British notable is his associate and vice-president in the company, H. R. Greenhalgh, aiding in the personal tour of the Leverhulme properties, which is made every year to foster the spirit of comraderie among the workers.

It was after an evening at the American institution of poker that Viscount Leverhulme sat down for his talk, and he wore a bit of a wry smile.

"Register winning at poker," he was asked by the photographer, and the Viscount's countenance expanded into a bland smile.

Then he confessed that he was acting, because he never won at the great American national game—indoors and around the table.

"This is purely a business trip," said the Viscount, with the fluff having been gone through. "I'm afraid I will have little time for anything else.

"I haven't really had much time to effect a comparison of business, but I will say that things are very much more brisk in the States than in England.

"The unemployment problem in England is still pretty bad, but the Premier is optimistic. Needless to say, however, things are better than in the past."

NEW ENGLANDERS OFF ON WORLD TRIP TOMORROW

Many New Englanders sail from New York at midnight tomorrow on the Red Star liner Belgenland for a world cruise. Among the passengers are Robert E. Brigham, Mrs. Bradstreet Parker, Mrs. Edward Winslow Pierce, Richard Winslow Pierce 2nd, Miss Polly Pierce, Eugene Stapleton, Miss Brigit Stapleton and Mr. and Mrs. Howard R. Guild of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Cyril H. Judge of Newport, R. I., J. P. Barron and Edward S. Jackson of Providence, F. V. Bowman, Miss Nettie J. Dayton and W. F. Munn of New Haven, John Sullivan of Waterbury, treasurer of the Eastern League baseball club, and Mrs. Sullivan; Brigadier-General H. C. Hodges, Jr., U. S. A., and Mrs. Hodges; Robert E. Tod, former commissioner of immigration; Mrs. Tod and Miss Katherine K. Tod.

FULLER HAS COLD; CONFINED TO HOME

Governor Fuller, who caught a slight cold while attending the Harvard-Yale game on Saturday, is still confined to his home. His early return to his desk at the State House is looked for by his secretary.

40-FT. GEYSER AS HYDRANT IS WRECKED

Sudbury Street Flooded When Truck Rams Pipe and Then Crashes Into Store Window

A geyser forty feet high followed the crashing of a hydrant at the corner of Sudbury and Hawkins streets, near Scollay square, by a truck today.

The geyser continued for fifteen minutes before the gates could be closed, but little damage to nearby cellars resulted, because of the near-perfect flowage through the catch-basin system near that point.

The truck went over the sidewalk and broke a plate glass window in the store of the Lucas Paint Company, No. 79 Sudbury street. No one was injured.

It is estimated that 30,000 gallons of water escaped from the wrecked hydrant.

LANE AND FINN MUST SERVE PRISON TERM

Supreme Bench Affirms Sentence of Pair in the Federal Trust Thefts

The full bench of the Supreme Court today refused to reverse the findings of the lower courts in the cases of Robert L. Finn and Humphrey Lane, and the men will have to serve their sentences of three to five years in State's Prison and one year in the Charles Street Jail respectively for their part in the theft of $137,000 from the Federal Trust Company.

The higher tribunal found nothing improper of counsel for the defence in the men's trial, stating that the district attorney prosecuting the case had full authority to confer with counsel for either side in order to obtain complete knowledge of the matter.

The defendants claimed in their plea that General Edward J. Logan, counsel for the trust company, had conducted improper conferences with other counsel.

Paul Downey, a teller in the bank, turned State's evidence and was given a probationary sentence for the crime. It was claimed that he was victimized by Lane and Finn.

TINNEY RETURNS TO WIFE: RECONCILIATION LOOMS

New York, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—At least a partial reconciliation was effected today between Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tinney, blackface comedian whose wife is suing him for a divorce, according to their daughter, Mrs. Myron Elias, of Rockville Center, Long Island.

Tinney, who returned from Europe yesterday, went to his wife's home at Baldwin, Long Island, where he is said to have received more of a welcome than Mrs. Tinney indicated would be his lot when she said she would "rather throw my arms around a coal man."

Linen Mill Reopens

New Bedford, Nov. 24 (I.N.S.).—Operations in the weaving department of the American Linen Company here were resumed today after being idle since last May. About 150 men returned to their work.

FIDDLER HAS ACCEPTED CALL FROM FORD

Champion of Maine to Take Century-Old Violin to Michigan

Norway, Me., Nov. 24 A.P.).—Alanson Mellen Dunham, whose fame as Maine's champion fiddle player became known to Henry Ford, has accepted the invitation of the manufacturer to visit him.

Dunham received final instructions from Mr. Ford today and will leave Wednesday or Thursday for Dearborn.

He will take his century-old violin with him. This will be his first trip out of Maine for a score of years.

The 72-year-old fiddler has been attracting nation-wide attention since it was learned that Mr. Ford has expressed a desire to hear him play. Letters of congratulation pour in every mail.

He goes about his chores and daily drives his patient old black horse to the village, as has been his custom for more than 50 years.

$27,575 TAX ON BABE RUTH AND CARL MAYS SALE

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The baseball deal by which Babe Ruth and Carl Mays were sold by the Boston Red Sox several years ago to the New York Yankees, had an echo today in a decision of the board of tax appeals, which held that the Boston club must pay an additional $27,575.09 income tax on profits on the sale.

The $140,000 paid for the two players fell due over a three-year period, and the Boston club contended that one of foreign decorations, believing the profit should be taxed in installments over the three years, thus reducing the net rate of tax levied.

SOVIET SCORES STAR WHO 'SOLD SOUL TO MAMMON'

Moscow, Russia, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Moscow theatrical circles express some resentment over the long absence from Russia of Feodor Chaliapin, famous Russian operatic basso. Many attempts were made by the theatrical authorities, but without effect, to persuade him to return to Moscow this season. While not saying definitely that he had forsaken Russia for good, Chaliapin declined to fix a date for his return. This attitude has aroused bitter comment in the Soviet press, which accuses the singer of having "sold his soul to Mammon."

CAR UPSET IN CRASH; 5 HURT

Machines Meet at Summer and Washington Streets; All Are in Hospital

Five men were injured in an automobile accident early today at Washington and Summer streets when their automobile was overturned in collision with another car.

The injured are: Ernest H. Gerrior, No. 18 Dana street, Somerville, operator of the overturned machine; David F. Murphy, No. 195 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown; John Doherty, No. 5 Cedar street, Charlestown; Henry T. Dolan, No. 22 Elm street, Charlestown, and Michael Mazarazzo, No. 69 Lincoln street, Somerville.

Two of the injured men were taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital in the machine of Edward Murphy, No. 293 Dorchester street, South Boston, and the other victims were removed to the hospital in the ambulance of the Mill street station.

The second machine in the collision was being operated by David Goldick of Wakefield boulevard, Winstead, Conn. Goldick and his machine escaped without injury.

Neck Broken, Halfback Dies

Waterbury, Ct., Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Emerson McCarthy, 18, left half back on a team which played Sunday, died today from a broken neck

Fire Victim

Mrs. Mary Gallagher, burned to death in her home at No. 50 Ellery street, South Boston.

Mrs. Mary Gallagher, forty-six, of No. 50 Ellery street, South Boston, died early today in Carney Hospital from burns suffered when a can of ardine fell from a ladder on a stove.

She was frightfully burned and d not regain consciousness. Her on, John, seventeen, was also urned painfully but not seriously is remained at his home after being iven medical attention.

The boy was varnishing a wall and had set a can of varnish on top of a stepladder. In some manner the can was upset and the contents poured on the stove. Mrs. Gallagher, who was preparing a meal, received the full force of the explosion and flames.

Dr. James J. Collins of No. 234 Broadway was called and ordered the woman to the hospital after giving her first aid treatment. Dr. Collins treated the son for burns on both hands, the head and face.

ALARM CLOCK LEADS COPS TO SUSPECT

Cambridge Man Tracked by Call Meant for Owner; is Held as Thief

Next to locomotives and limburger cheese, the commodity that lends itself least to the art and the science of burglary is an alarm clock, and Phillip Kenney of No. 5 Hampshire place, Cambridge, discovered this today.

Despite all that can be done, the fixed habit of a well-trained alarm clock cannot be controverted, and not all the sneers and the snarls of the sleepy can block its thrill in the early hours.

It even wakes policemen, and so today Patrolmen Walter Reed and Elmer Raymond went out into the streets looking for an arrest and found that Phillip had the time.

The police received word that the store of F. J. Forrester at No. 89 Webster avenue, Somerville, had been burgled, and Reed and Raymond went out into the chill to hunt.

In the avenue they met Kenney busting along with an overcoat thrown over his arm, even if it was a bit foolish.

"There you are," said Reed and Raymond.

"Ho," said Phillip. "So long."

"So long," chirruped Reed and Raymond.

Then the alarm clock went off.

"Time to wake up," said Reed and Raymond.

So they arrested Phillip, who was found to have cigarettes, tobacco and gum, besides the alarm clock, which had done a bit of gumming itself.

In the district court later, Judge Sturtevant held Kenney for the Grand Jury in $5,000, although he indicated that the clock was a false alarm by pleading not guilty.

Captain Evans Quits Navy

Chicago, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Captain Waldo Evans, commandant of the Ninth Naval District and naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill., retires today after completing thirty-eight years of service. His successor is Captain John F. Hines of the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. He is fifty-six years old.

FIRST OF XMAS SHIPS SAILS TOMORROW

Deluge of Holiday Voyagers Starts Dec. 6; More on the 13th

First of the Christmas sailings from Boston for European ports is scheduled for tomorrow, when the Cunarder Liner President Wilson sails from Commonwealth Pier for the Azores and Mediterranean ports. The real deluge of homeward bound holiday goers, however, is reserved for Sunday, Dec. 6, when three steamers for the Azores and Mediterranean ports leave the State Pier.

For those of our citizens and near citizens who would journey to nearer homelands, the Cunard and White Star lines have arranged sailings from Boston on December 13. By taking either of the ships leaving on that day, persons who would visit the old folks in England, Ireland or Scotland, or even France and nearer continental places, could make their starts and be sure of arriving in time.

The Cunard Line offers its patrons the trip in the handsome steamer Samaria, while the White Star people will send the Celtic off. Arrangements have been made by each line whereby religious worship can be carried out as if on land.

The Cosulich Line will send the Martha Washington, the Navagazione Generale, the Guiseppi Verdi; the Fabre line, the Providence from Commonwealth Pier on December 6.

Thomas J. Crowin of the White Star line staff will have charge of the Christmas sailing of the Celtic. He will attend to the matter of securing railroad transportation, help expedite custom matters and otherwise assist the passengers. After that's all done he'll go to Leitrim, Monaghan and Cork to visit with relatives before returning to the United States.

For the Cunard line, George C. McCorey will go along as head of the party and to arrange all transportation details.

TREMORS PROMPT PLEA FOR BROWN SEISMOGRAPH

Providence, R. I., Nov. 24.—The need of a seismograph at Brown University following earth tremors in Rhode Island which failed to register at the Harvard Observatory, is pointed out by Prof. Charles Wilson Brown of the geology department.

It is expected that an instrument will be obtained.

Dean Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard concurs in Prof. Brown's belief that some re-adjustments of the earth's crust along the continental shelf in the St. Lawrence valley might not be recorded at the Harvard station.

STOPS TO FIX AUTO, MACHINE ROLLS INTO BAY

The brakes of his auto failed to hold when Morris Crossman stopped the car and got out to make an adjustment on Dorchester street, Squantum, and the machine rolled down a twenty-foot incline into Dorchester Bay.

The water was only six inches deep, however.

Romany Rings

Romany Rings are the latest, most original rings yet developed. Every Romany Ring is really two rings in one. Romany Rings have a reversible top, on either side of which can be mounted a different precious stone. Either stone can be turned into place as desired. Romany Rings permit you to harmonize the color of your ring with the color of your dress. They permit you to wear a ring combining two birthstones. They permit you to wear an informal ring for afternoon dress, and a formal ring with evening clothes. They cost but little more than a single stone ring, yet they give you every advantage of two different and distinct rings. Made in 14K. and 18K. white and green gold. Any combination of stones you want.

WOMAN BANK LOOTER LOST OWN $15,000

New York, Nov. 24.—While with the prison nurse, Maud E. Tefft, former treasurer of the Kingston Trust Company of Kingston, R. I., testified for the government today in the Van Riper case.

For years Maud Tefft was treasurer in the little Rhode Island town, a woman living comfortably and with a nest egg of $15,000 tucked away—and then the alleged Van Riper gang brought her downfall, she said.

Composing the alleged "gang," charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, are Lewis C. Van Riper, Charles E. Van Riper and eight companions, and it was this combination, Miss Tefft asserted, that put her behind the bars in Rhode Island State Prison again embezzler.

Miss Tefft testified that she had personal savings of $15,000 put away against a rainy day when she was visited by Harry Hedrick, one of the ten defendants.

Hedrick was publisher of a financial newspaper, printed, it is alleged, on behalf of Van Riper & Co., and the securities and promotions it fostered.

She was induced to invest her $15,000 in oil stocks, Miss Tefft testified, but the Van Riper securities proved worthless and her life savings were swept away.

In an attempt to recuperate her losses, she said, she took money from the bank, and this money went the way of the first.

A prison nurse and two guards supported the pale woman as she told her story.

NO PARACHUTES ON SHENANDOAH

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The Shenandoah naval court today put under rigid cross-examination another witness who had testified in the Mitchell court-martial, question ing O. A. Anderson, army air service officer from Kelly Field, Tex., for two hours.

Before the Mitchell court Anderson testified that rigid airships should be equipped with parachutes and that the Shenandoah's structure probably was weakened when she tore away from the mooring mast at Lakehurst, N. J., in January, 1924.

The witness conceded that the question of equipping rigid airships was purely a matter of opinion, which should be based on experience and study. He thought there was a probability that one or two of those killed in the Shenandoah wreck might have been saved had parachutes been on board.

ROMEO OF 80 MUST PAY $25 FOR A STOLEN KISS

Detroit, Nov. 24.—"She dodged and I only kissed her left ear," eighty-one-year-old William Pershe told the jury which ordered him to pay $25 to Mrs. Vespina Lolakos, twenty-eight, his comely landlady, who sued for $10,000. The jury was out ten minutes.

21 COWS ARE BURNED TO DEATH AT TOWN FARM

Rockville, Ct., Nov. 24 (I.N.S.).—Twenty-one cows were burned to death during a fire today which destroyed the barn and storage house at town farm. Thirty tons of hay and the farm's season crops were lost. Damage was estimated at $15,000. One hundred feet away stands the farm dormitory. Twenty men and women inmates were aroused and arrangements made to remove them, but the fire did not spread.

The snap of Winter that greeted early risers this morning, will continue through tonight, but a rising temperature is predicted for tomorrow. Cold weather is general over the eastern half of the country. Florida is shivering under unusually low temperatures and killing frosts were reported today at Jacksonville.

Cold tonight, fair Wednesday and slightly warmer is the official forecast issued from the local weather bureau. Experts say there is every reason to expect fair, seasonable weather for the next few days.

Greenville, Me., with 18 degrees was the coldest point in the country this morning, while Boston reported a chilly 28. Heavy frosts were reported in the suburbs and served as a warning of Winter's blasts that may be expected within the next week or two.

M'NEILL NOW QUITS CABINET

By DANIEL O'CONNELL

Dublin, Nov. 24 (I.N.S.).—Dr. John MacNeill, minister of education, has resigned from the Free State Cabinet, it is reported this afternoon.

Further reports state that the entire Cabinet may resign, as a protest against the British attitude on the Ulster boundary.

Dr. MacNeill resigned from the Boundary Commission on Saturday because of a drafted report which is understood to have proposed that Ulster be given a considerable amount of Irish Free State territory.

London, Nov. 24 (I.N.S.).—Premier Baldwin has summoned the Cabinet to meet tomorrow to consider the question of the disputed Irish boundary. The resignation of Dr. John MacNeill as Irish Free State member of the Boundary Commission has created a delicate situation.

To Give Answer

Paris, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Briand called at the Elysee Palace today and told President Doumergue he would give him a definite answer this afternoon as to whether or not he will accept the task of forming a cabinet.

GIRLS SEEKING WAY TO FIGHT 'L' BEAST

By FAY KING

It's time something was done to protect women and girls from the low men who annoy them in the elevated trains and street cars.

Whether the final result is separate cars for women or an organized defense, something must be done to suppress these degenerates!

These unspeakable tactics are not confined to any particular class of men! Men in soiled working clothes and those whose skin is black, may have the instinct of a true gentleman, while a well-dressed, well-groomed and educated man may be the offender!

Few women have the courage to slap such men in the face, or stamp on their toes, or make a public outcry, fearing, as they do, the consequences of such a scene, for none can look more innocent or falsely accused than these very swine, when hauled out!

Jammed in, as women and men are, during the rush hours, close contact is inevitable, and no woman wants to appear unduly offended by what is a truly accidental and unintentional annoyance.

What can a woman do to ward off the offensive knee-nudging, body-pressing, rib-tickling attacks of these human vermin?

It is done so unmistakably and yet so invisibly.

Rather than attract attention to herself and cause undue disturbance, women will endure and even rarely confess these unpleasant occurrences. And knowing this, these vile men continue their annoyances—daily!

Something must be done about it!

tremely interesting, and the Bible is still the world's "best seller."

MEN CREEPING along the ground cannot fight successfully against poison gas, quick firing guns, and explosives from the air. They have as much chance as a rabbit against an eagle.

Even the government of the United States will make that discovery some day.

ABD-EL-KRIM, starting out to drive France and Spain from North Africa, came in contact with the French fliers. Now his men demand that their leader supply them with bread, and are looting villages.

FRANCE HAS a new government and the French franc sank yesterday to a new low price, 3.89 cents for a franc worth 19.3 cents when the war started.

However, the low price of the franc represents not the condition of France, but the bad judgment of foreigners that deal in exchange. France is a very rich nation, 99 per cent. of French men and women are thrifty. French mechanics are as skilful as any in the world. That is not a nation to be sold short safely.

NEW HAMPSHIRE revives solitary imprisonment for criminals. For a strong brain solitude is a good thing, if not overdone.

Every man worth while seeks mental solitude, difficult to find in this age.

But for the weak, criminal brain solitude in dangerous breeds bitter hatred, leads to insanity.

As well prescribe solitary confinement for a cancer patient as for a criminal.

CERTAIN DEALERS in "sacramental wines" have agreed to cut down their requirements by 97 per cent. These "wines" included various liquors containing 50 or more per cent. of alcohol. Sacramentally speaking, the country must have been quite wet if it is possible, without a complete drought, to cut 97 per cent. from the allowance.

THREE WOMEN IN CHELSEA PRIMARIES

Two women are candidates for Aldermen and a third for the school committee at today's primaries in Chelsea. The big issue, however, is the "vindication" campaign of Mayor Laurence F. Quigley for re-nomination. He is under a Federal indictment charging conspiracy in a rum selling "ring."

Mayor Quigley was opposed by Alderman Clarence Richmond and Frederick J. Hamm, brother of former Councillor Hagan of the Boston City Council. The two highest candidates get the nomination.

Miss Cecile Cohen, school teacher, who last year was defeated for alderman-at-large, again seeks the nomination. She is opposed by four men. The two highest will contest for a two-year term.

The other woman aldermanic candidate is Miss Eva L. Sidelinger of Ward 3.

Mrs. Anna M. Benson, mother of two children, would be a candidate for school committee member from Ward 5. As Mrs. Benson has only one opponent she was automatically nominated.

In each ward two aldermen were to be nominated to compete later for the one-year term as ward alderman.

Three candidates for nomination as ward school committee candidates were unopposed and are therefore elected. They are Frederick J. Ryan, Ward 1; James J. Lawlor, Ward 3; H. Raymond Carter, Ward 4.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Dance and Dinner by Samuel Hammonds Usher in Thanksgiving Week

THANKSGIVING WEEK was ushered in with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hammond hosts giving a dance in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Susan Hammond, at the Womans' Republican Club in Beacon street. There was a preliminary dinner, at which the Hammonds also were hosts, at the Somerset Club.

YOUNG MEN, who later did usher duties, under the tutelage of Messrs. Samuel Hammond, Jr., and John Wilkie, were guests. They included Holland Beal, Lamont Harris, Samuel Hallowell, Dudley Clark and George Francis.

ALSO MESSRS. RICHARD SANGER, Joseph Warren, Harlow Higginbotham, Moses Williams, William Brewster, Hancock Curr and Moorfield Storey, well known in Boston society.

MISS HAMMOND WAS pretty as a picture in a frock of pink etty tulle, built into a ballroom creation bouffant and girlish. Her mother, with whom she received, was in a gown of silver and bright blue, a tunic effect over satin.

THE HAMMONDS HAVE their town house in Beacon street and spend their Summers at "Castlerock," Nahant. Of course, Miss Hammond has been admitted to the Junior League, the mark of a successful bud.

GEORGE C. GREENER has crowded many rare and beautiful things into the rooms of the North Bennet Street Industrial School, and many Society maids and matrons traveled to the Old North End for the invitation tea and opening of Mr. Greener's annual sale.

HIS RECENT TRIP to European markets he spent the entire Summer in searching out treasures through France and Spain. Italy and England gave rich reward. Society, in a buying mood, was doing a mighty trade in gifts for adding to already rich permanent collections.

IN FACT, THE SELLING force and the multitude of buyers—connoisseurs all—were equally of society representation. Miss Mary Weld, trimly togged out in an ensemble of terra cotta reg combined with chinchilla fur, flitted about from room to room, as business-like as could be with book and pencil.

MRS. ROBERT H. STEVENSON, Jr., smart in a blue cloth frock with touches of red; Mrs. Harris Livermore, a distinctive figure in cloth frock in modish silhouette and wearing enormous antique amber eardrops; Mrs. Gorham Brooks in old wine red with small and smart chapeau, each added to the striking scene.

THE MARCHESA FERRANTI, also of the sales force, wore a braided frock, and Mrs. Edwin Farnham Greene, in black velvet with Castilian red, was quite in the atmosphere of the foreign-looking apartments into which Mr. Greener has transformed the prosaic industrial school rooms. Mrs. Ralph Bradley, in Autumn red, was there.

GREETED BY FRIENDS on all sides, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr moved about the treasure-filled rooms, buying with discrimination. The felicitations came her way anent the showing of her latest artistic effort, a bas relief of Admiral William S. Sims, now to be seen at the Doll & Richards' gallery.

BUT SPEAKING AGAIN of the Greener sale—Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson, with a flash of terra cotta color gleaming from a jaunty scarf; Mrs. John Bryant Paine, in a frock of old blue; Mrs. Frederick S. Mead in furred wrap, Mrs. J. Lovell Little in rich black with carasul, Mrs. Everett Morss and her daughter, Mrs. Gardiner Fiske, were in the throng.

AS AFTERMATH OF last Friday's gay "night-before-the-game" dance with Useless Club members as hosts, came a tea at the Copley-Plaza, with Messrs. John W. Watson, Paul Barron Watson, Jr., George Richmond Fearing, 3rd, Richard Baker and other club members extending Useless Club greetings.

AND IN THE offing there is the party at which Mrs. James Cummings Barr and Mr. Barr—cosmopolites both, with hosts of friends in many centres—will gather all the Useless Club clans in Gotham. The Barrs' hospitality in all probability will be a dinner dance, a form of entertaining at which they excel.

THE COLONIAL THEATRE was crowded today for the large and luminous theatrical benefit which is an annual show directed by Community Service. It's designed to furnish a full program of stage "headliners" and, incidentally, to replenish Community Service coffers.

IT'S INTO these coffers that Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien and her companions of the Community Service's hospital committee dip to lighten the way for disabled soldiers in various hospitals here—a work to which she is devoted heart and soul.

ANNUALLY THERE'S a roundup of celebrities of the stage who appear in a long and delightful program—and today's affair gleams brightly with DeWolf Hopper the inimitable master of ceremonies. This seasoned veteran of the stage needs no introduction to Boston audiences.

JUNIOR LEAGUE GIRLS, always to be counted on to aid Sweet Charity, assume with much aplomb the duties of usher and flower girls, this year's group in their cretonne frocks, directed by Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray.

Betty Alden

MISS MARY WELD, well known in Boston's younger smart set, was a much observed figure at the opening of the annual North Bennet Street School sale and exhibition.

Mafalda Had Influenza

Rome, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Princess Mafalda, the second daughter of Italy's ruling house, who was married to Prince Philip of Hesse September 23, has suffered a slight attack of influenza. This was made known today, when it was announced that she was convalescent.

Wellesley and Radcliffe Refuse to Lift the Ban as Bryn Mawr Did

In sifting of the 28-year-old ban on cigarette making at Bryn Mawr College by President Marion E. Parks will have no effect on the ruling recently made at Wellesley nor the age-old law at Radcliffe which prohibits smoking by the students "in any college building or any public place in Cambridge."

When informed of the action taken by the Bryn Mawr head, President Ellen Pendleton of Wellesley said:

"The Bryn Mawr methods of handling the situation does not interest us nor will it alter in any way the regulation made at Wellesley a week ago."

Miss Ada Comstock, Radcliffe's president said:

"The rule governing smoking at Radcliffe has ben in effect many years and we do not contemplate making any change. I do not think the Bryn Mawr action will lead to any requests being made to take like action here and I sincerely hope there will be none."

LEOMINSTER GIRL TO WED SOMERVILLE MAN

At the Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Saverio Padovano, No. 334 Lancaster street, Leominster, announcement will be made of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Theresa Padovano, to Dominick J. Forte, of No. 446 Broadway, Wm. Theresa Padovano ter Hill, Somerville.

There will be guests from Somerville and Lancaster, numbering intimate friends and relatives of both Miss Padovano and Mr. Forte. The wedding is planned for the spring.

TURKISH PHONE GIRLS STAGE THEIR FIRST STRIKE

Constantinople, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Though Turkish girls have only within the past few years entered the industrial and business world, they already have learned how to go on strike. The telephone operators of Constantinople organized a union some three months ago and have laid before the directors of the company, an English concern, a demand for a 50 per cent. increase in salaries. The present average wage for a "hello girl" is 25 liras a month, about $15. The chief operators receive less than $15 per month, while some of the girls receive only $11.

The campaign for sale of Christmas seals to aid in the fight against tuberculosis will start in the schools soon.

The modern crusade under the auspices of the Boston Tuberculosis Association shows increasing impetus with more than 11,000 children now enrolled.

Miss Mary Clifford, R. N., a graduate of the Boston City Hospital and of Simmons' School for Public Health Nursing, is in charge of the crusade and more than ninety classes have been addressed this year.

Miss Bernice W. Billings, executive secretary of the Boston Tuberculosis Association, will be in charge of the seal sale.

BURGESS BARRED FROM BAY STATE WITH BRIDE

New York, Nov. 24.—Providence, R. I., will be the latest Arcadia of W. Starling Burgess, wealthy Beverly, Mass., yacht designer, and his bride, who was Miss Elsie Janet Peas of Sandwich, N. H., until they made a Gretna Green of New York.

The decision of the couple to make their home in Providence came, it is believed, when it was made known that the divorce by his former wife, Mrs. Rosamond Tudor Burgess, obtained in May from Burgess, does not permit Mr. Burgess to remarry again in Massachusetts for two years and six months, or to live within the State with a wife married in another State.

HOUSEKEEPER DEFENDED BY MORGAN

Clubman Testifies He Prevented Wife From Searching Woman's Effects

Harry W. Morgan, wealthy Newton clubman, prevented his wife from opening the door of a closet containing the personal effects of Miss Helen Rumrill, their housekeeper, he testified in his suit to secure legal separation from his wife, Frances, and the custody of his ten-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, before Judge Beane in the Middlesex Probate Court today.

The reason Morgan declared was that Mrs. Morgan had repeatedly told him Miss Rumrill had taken some of her belongings when he knew that some of the articles said to have been appropriated he took to Mrs. Morgan herself while the latter was in a sanitarium.

Morgan denied that he pulled Mrs. Morgan's arm violently from a sling in 1923 and declared that from 1917 to 1922 he had acted strictly on the advice of a physician in his treatment of his wife.

Cross-examined by Attorney Hugh Odgen, counsel for Mrs. Morgan and asked if Mrs. Morgan didn't have the right to inspect the household linen, Morgan said her act was not one of courtesy.

The clubman was immediately placed on the stand when the case re-opened today and questioned relative to a letter he is alleged to have written a Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Ward in which information was desired about what accommodations could be obtained for $25 a week. Under cross-examination it was brought out that Morgan still clings to his theory that his wife is mentally incapable of caring for the child.

UNION BARBERS HAVE 3 SHOPS TO WATCH

Cambridge Strike Goes on, With 200 Men Out in Demand for $25 and "Split"

Three pickets were picketed today in the strike of about 200 journeymen barbers, of Cambridge, including the Dunleavy shop in Central Square, where a man entered waiting a razor and chased Clyde Sutherland, one of the foremen who was shaving a customer out of the shop.

The Dunleavy shop in Harvard Square was also being picketed as was that of Phillip Lalovel in Bratts Square. Police are keeping the pickets moving.

Few, if any, union barbers are working in Cambridge, and in most instances the proprietors and master barbers are alone on the job.

The strikers are asking a flat wage of $25 a week, with one-half over $25 taken in each week. They claim that 95 per cent. of the master barbers accepted such an agreement and that the strike was called to force the other 5 per cent. into line.

Ford, Edison Seek Models of Old Patents

Washington, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford are among the 2,000 applicants for some of the 100,000 old patent office models now being sorted by a commission authorized by Congress. Edison's request for originals of his earlier inventions covers five classic type-written pages.

Ford wants to preserve models of mechanical engineering devices for study and Prof. Carl N. Mitcham, a member of the commission and curator of engineering at the Smithsonian Institution, is collecting these for Ford.

FRIEND FOUND BARBOUR 'SANE AND JOLLY'

Never did John A. Barbour, late of Brookline, give any indication of an unsound mind, lack of memory or failure in intelligence, it was testified today in Norfolk Superior Court, Dedham, by William R. Marshall, leather merchant and friend and business acquaintance.

Barbour's will is under contest by his widow and daughter, and sterling charges and counter-charges have been made in the case.

For seventeen or eighteen years, Marshall testified, he engaged in business deals with Barbour, and repeatedly they discussed Barbour's business affairs, finance and automobiles.

The last time Barbour was seen by Marshall, he said, was on December 20, 1924, when he visited Barbour's Brookline home and presented him with a bottle of sherry wine.

Barbour offered him a Scotch highball. Martineau testified, but when Martineau said he did not wish to drink alone, Mrs. Barbour volunteered to drink a highball with him, and Barbour said he would drink some of the wine.

The witness asserted that Barbour at all times had a well-developed sense of humor and was in control. He never noticed any physical weakness in his friend, Martineau declared.

Witness said he told Barbour his clothes were inclined to be "loud." He denied he had ever seen Barbour wearing a red vest.

Andrew R. Ritchey, Brookline radio dealer, said he had installed a radio set in the Barbour home. He said Barbour always appeared sane to him.

STUDENTS DEFY TEAR GAS, SLUG MAYOR, IN RIOT

Northwestern University Stages a Wild Rampage in Celebration of Grid Victories

Chicago, Nov. 24 (A.P.)—Defying police pistols, tear bombs and alarms from fire hose, 2,000 Northwestern University men and women students celebrated the prowess of their football team by rampaging all over quiet, aristocratic Evanston.

Before their enthusiasm waned early today, a vacant fraternity house was in ashes, a policeman had two broken ribs, four students were in jail, scores had black eyes and cracked heads, and Mayor Charles E. Bartlett, nursing a bruised head, declared Northwestern would never have the new stadium it has planned.

The police and firemen were helpless when the pre-arranged jubilee began. The cops were stripped of their badges and made the victims of their own mates. Firemen, dashing to answer numerous alarms, most of them false and others resulting from bonfires, had their hose knifed and equipment dumped and scrambled.

Finally after reinforcements of riot squads came from Chicago and forty World War veterans were mobilized by a former service man's organization to aid the police, the students retired to the Lake Michigan front and ended the evening with huge bonfires, songs and cheers.

President Walter Dill Scott, who had called Mayor Swanson, returned on the celebration concluded. His only comment was that the burned fraternity house was not worth much anyhow.

HUB LOSES SENATOR BY REDISTRICTING PLAN

Under plans virtually completed by the redistricting committee of the Legislature, of which Senator Walter E. McLane of Fall River is chairman, Boston will lose one Senator, which means one less Democrat in the upper chamber. A new senatorial district is understood, will be formed in Middlesex and Norfolk.

It is learned also that the redistricting plan when first completed provided for only thirty-nine instead of forty Senators, necessitating a lot of additional work in straightening out the tangle.

The same committee is redistricting the representative districts and is expected to cut down materially Boston's representation in the House.

The redistricting is the outcome of the decision of the Supreme Court in which it was held that a legal voter is a registered voter.

POTATO EMBARGO OFF, BUT PRICE STAYS UP

The embargo on potatoes behind for local markets was removed today by the Boston & Maine Railroad after being applied two weeks ago when 488 carloads had accumulated in the Boston yards.

"Plenty of potatoes," was the report made today by local marketmen. They declared that the embargo had only slightly affected local supply.

In spite of the plentiful supply, however, potatoes sold for 90 cents a peck today, although a few dealers reduced prices, some as low as 87 cents.

SPRINGFIELD BREWERY'S LAST PLANT AUCTIONED

Springfield, Nov. 24 (A.P.).—The Liberty Brewery, the last of the several plants of the Springfield Brewing Company to be disposed of, was sold at auction today to Theodore R. Geisel, president of the breweries company, for $110,000. The sale was in pursuance of the liquidation of the company which has long been in progress. Mr. Geisel purchased for investment purposes.

LEVI REDDEN, SEXTON, DIES IN RESTAURANT

Collapsing while eating lunch, Levi Redden, 67, sexton of the Ridge street Baptist Church, died before aid could reach him in a restaurant in Northampton street today. The body was taken to the South morgue. Redden's home address was given as No. 173 Ruggles street.

A Girl's Soul Stirs and She Wonders Why; Going Out Into the World to Learn of Love

She wants not to look. She wants I to go away from the room now. And she wanted to now she wanted to stay there watching the sober evening.

SYNOPSIS

NANCY HAWTHORNE, motherless, lives in an English country village with her father. She has an experience with Curly Collins, a country boy she has befriended. She discusses what occurs with her father. Then comes a strange stirring and she decides to see the world. In Paris she meets Cornelia Evans, daughter of an American millionaire. The girls form a studio partnership. They give a housewarming. Nancy meets Jean de Courcy, French cavalry lieutenant, who pursues Cornelia. She also meets Count de Bercy Mormal, a man who accosted her in the street. The count is Cornelia's brother-in-law. Nancy scornfully rejects his friendship. Lloyd Evans, Cornelia's brother, and his chum, Bob Whittaker, Oxford undergraduates, telegraph they're coming to Paris. Nancy is strangely affected by the news. Bob comes. Nancy fancies him.

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Old Jack Stivetts Times Have Changed And So Have Salaries Modern Athlete Keeps It

—By Nick Flatley—

JACK STIVETTS, one of the great pitchers of the wild old baseball era, escaped a job sentence because a Chicago judge appeared to remember how he was brought into court for pay envelope.

The judge, a fan is getting him a job. Tony Mullane and Sam Carrick and others of the golden days of baseball in Boston remember Jack very well. He was a big right hander who could slam a curve after the fashion of Babe Ruth. When he wasn't pitching he was often pitching or attending to pastel in Boston or some ten pound resort. He was a big man, six feet tall, and in 1892 1893 and 1894 he was one of the iron men of his day, when pitchers had to work two and three times each and every week. The boys couldn't pick soft spots then.

Nick Flatley

STIVETTS played in the days of Sherman Long and Bobby Lowe and Fred Tenney, at a time when the brilliant Jimmy Collins was a wonderful third baseman in Boston and Hugh Duffy and Vic Willis. Ganzel was his catcher.

All those names are engraved eternally on baseball history. Those boys were great players, just as big as any of the stars of today. But the batting were different.

Stivetts, for one, in this financial age would be a $15,000 a year pitcher. He was built like a modern pitcher. He was tall and rangy and could hit.

BALL players of that period were not bustling young business men. They did not take the 1st monthly check and tuck it into the savings account. They were not investing in Florida real estate, and saving a side.

They loved over the batting averages, rather than the stock reports They didn't know an ice cream soda from a sundae. They quaffed their beake s of ale and ale, or took the shot, straight. Life wasn't earnest for them, just a joy parade.

When the ravages of time and dissipation wrecked their muscles, they became drifters, hangers-on and more or less scorned in a world that had been singing their praises.

THE same thing happens, in a general way to the hero today. Tomorrow he is forgotten, and the plaudits are for the new star. But the passing luminary has learned to feather his nest.

Almost any modern ball player you name will save more in the ten years that are his career, than the average citizen getting as much or more money. They will not be drifting into police courts when they're old men. Not if they can help it.

They have seen too many of Stivetts brand. Amos Rusie, for instance, one of the greatest pitchers that ever handled a baseball, a national idol for many years. Today he's ticket taker at the Polo Grounds, rescued from poverty by McGraw. His case is one of a hundred

25 Report for Crimson Net Team

By TED LYNCH.

Twenty-five men have reported to Coach Ed Wachter of the Harvard basketball team and will start active work this afternoon at the Hemenway Gymnasium. This is one of the poorest turnouts in years, and it seems unexplainable as last year's quintet had an almost perfect record, getting 13 out of 16 victories and winning its objective game with Yale.

"This year's schedule is the hardest since the court game was reorganized here," said Wachter in his opening talk to the candidates "Your captain, Bill Smith, is an excellent leader and with Dolph Sambroski was largely responsible for the excellent showing of last year's team. Only hard work can meet such a strenuous schedule and I wish one point to sink into your minds, 'no player is sure of his position and veterans will be treated as candidates.'"

The Harvard varsity practices will take place on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7 30 and Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 3 30

GORMAN IS PICKED TO BEAT KEELEY

PROGRAM FEATURES 'HEAVIES'

Monroe Meets Cook; Gates Tackles Seifert; Okum Faces Starmati

By JACK CONWAY

THERE will be 1,500 pounds of bone and brawn tossed into the ring at Mechanics Building tonight when the Commercial A. C. stages an all star heavyweight card. Packed between the walls will be a dear old public forget about incomplete forward passes, placement kicks, a variety of tickers for the day stress in the game and such things.

YOU will get punching and boxing at tonight's show. With eight big fellows billed to do the stuff merely will add to the stake at hand.

There will not be any champions on the job tonight evening unless you want to recognize Cook's title to Australian title. That should not and is anybody in the title holders are often so careful that they forget boxing is a he man sport.

Jack Conway

GORMAN and Keeley occupy the feature position on the card. Both also been winners in their previous Boston starts. Gorman is a comer, a newcomer from Jack Dempsey's native heath and mill town, is favorite to win. He has the punching power, the ability to hit and get away.

Keeley is a southpaw, boxing with right hand and right foot extended. He is a strong rough kid with a mean sock in each hand. He's also aggressive which makes him a dangerous threat for Gorman If he can slip over some of the healthy wallops, he will make Gorman forget all about some of his boxing tricks.

Lee Flynn Flynn, who has been managing boxers since Noah had charge of the Ark, will hand out the wisdom from Gorman's corner. Lee recently paid Harry Neary and Billy Duffy $5,000 for Gorman's contract. As Lee has a reputation of being the original apple for an orchard salesman, Gorman's stock must be due to soar.

JACK MUNROE of Montana will collide with George Cook of Australia in the semi-final of ten rounds. Munroe comes from out of the West with a reputation as a puncher. He was all Jack Kearns left in the boxing line in the enterprising State of Montana after the merry Shelby affair

Cook has been working out here with Jack Sharkey and doesn't believe that Munroe will be able to dent his reputation. The wise boys will wager a little Mexican currency on Cook's chances of winning.

THE gallery Gods will probably let loose a few war whoops when Leo Gates, Indian heavyweight, clashes with Sandy Seifert of Pittsburgh in another ten-rounder. Gates is a veteran campaigner who is well versed in the boxing racket.

Seifert is a youngster who has been forging to the front under the direction of Jimmy Bronson, manager of Pob Martin and Jack Zivic. Sandy recently stopped Jimmy Madden of Roxbury at the Arena. He also loused ole Stoddard for a substantial loss.

Yale Okum of New York, whose right hand threat caused Tom Kirby of Roxbury to become a diving master, will meet Pete Stamarti of Nashua, N. H., in the opening ten-rounder. Stamarti has not any intention of emulating Kirby's flop which will be pleasing news for the cash customers.

Looking Towards Dempsey

Bud Gorman, Kenosha, Wis., heavyweight, who tackles E. Keeley of Bridgeport tonight. Inset depicts Sandy Seifert of Pittsburgh, who will oppose Lee Gates of New York.

MUNN ARRIVES TONIGHT FOR MONDT BOUT

By RINGSIDE

Wayne (Big) Munn will whang his way into town tonight

Munn, six feet six inches tall and weighing 240 pounds, formerly played football for the University of Nebraska. Later he took up wrestling and became the world's heavy weight champion as a result of a victory over Strangler Lewis.

Munn imbued with college spirit defended his title while sick rather than disappoint the fans and was defeated

Now Big Wayne is out to regain his lost championship. He will stage a new title surge when he clashes with Toots Mondt in a finish mat bout best two falls out of three, at Mechanics Building on Thanksgiving night

It is the most important mat bout billed so far this season, and is expected to attract a large crowd.

AS USUAL

THE Boston Daily Advertiser will issue a fight [illegible] after tonight's heavyweight bouts [illegible] Mechanics Building. Tomorrow Jack Conway's usual interesting story of the fights will appear in the Boston Evening American.

Grange Didn't Play but He Did His Bit in Beating Badgers Back in '22

This is the sixteenth of a series of articles dealing with the football career of Harold (Red) Grange, one of the greatest players in the game

As Told to Harold Johnson.

BY HAROLD (RED) GRANGE.

BACK in the days when [illegible] Barry and [illegible] Wayne were starring at the University of Wisconsin [illegible] was noted for [illegible] sensational game. In those days [illegible] Badger line and [illegible] as its backfield was perfectly balanced. It was for Barr after receiving the ball, to pass it along to Williams for a [illegible]

When the ball had been passed from Barr to Williams the latter, now coach of the freshmen at Illinois as was Grange. The former, although a clever forward passer would [illegible] high to Red appealing the [illegible] for Barr after receiving the ball, to pass it along to Williams for a [illegible]

HEAVY TACKLING WAS BARRED

In scrimmages during prepara- [illegible] for their games back in 1922 Zuppke insisted that there be no heavy tackling. In fact he ordered that players of the varsity merely touch the men of the fresh squad

So while the Illini drilled for the Badgers Grange impersonated Pete Williams. Cook took the part of Gibson, Grange would go into position and make a fake pass to Baker, and on three occasions the redhead galloped around the end for touchdowns. When the Illini met Wisconsin in the Big Ten championship game Illinois returned winner by the score of 21 to 0. The practice against the freshmen using Wisconsin's formation proved mighty valuable to the Illini veterans.

In those days Moon Baker was a freshman at the University of Illinois as was Grange. The former, although a clever forward passer would [illegible] high to Red appealing the [illegible] for Barr after receiving the ball, to pass it along to Williams for a [illegible]

BAKER A BEAR AT TOSSING

Baker was later [illegible] and [illegible] that fame as a member of Northwestern's varsity eleven, although could peg the football, and with accuracy. For some reason he did not remain at the University of Illinois and entered Northwestern. What a wonderful pair of halfbacks Illinois would have had in the event Baker and Grange were pals!

"I was never any booker at the [illegible] of his form," said Grange, during a recent [illegible] "He was a great [illegible] for me has been [illegible] of place in the news papers."

THE END

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER R. HORTON

During the golf swing the club, the player's hands, arms and arms [illegible] maintain their fixed length and the body keeps its fixed height from the ball [illegible] resembling that the head is held approximately still. The variation then is the form of which [illegible] weight shifts [illegible] and forth [illegible] weight. The [illegible] has a [illegible] to move to the right [illegible] ing the back swing, the left [illegible] during the forward swing. It is not possible to swing the club without this body action so the proper way to get it into the swing is with the right proportion. The right proportion is not to [illegible] a pattern. Let the weight move over in the back swing until you feel you are "directly on top of the right leg. Then stay there while the upper body pivots. In the forward swing stiffen the left leg when you have got on top of it, and hold the weight there while the club swings through.

Coach Ross [illegible] gloves lads setting up exercises [illegible] B. A. A. gym and plenty of [illegible] about the town to [illegible] for the opening of the season. In addition the players have had [illegible] full share of action on the ice surface of the Arena and things look a season not better than a year ago at this [illegible]

The greatest addition to [illegible] ton team is Georges Clegg, one of the most sensational individual hockey players [illegible] pro ranks

According to Art Ross the conditioning exercise at the B. A. A. gym were a great help in preparing the Pros equal for a touch [illegible] game. The Bruins should have a team to cheer for this season with such players as the forward line as Jerry Dutton, Mary Manners, Jackson Brackenborough, Reading, and Schnarr. Along with the return of Red Stuart who is to start in his old position this year, and Hitchman, both should thrive on a good season.

In the net will be the other veteran of a year ago, "Percy" Stewart who is in fine fettle to stop the rubber disc

Mystery Story of Love and Plotting

got up just to look out before going to sleep.

A little breeze ruffled the curtains a breeze laden with lilac from the gardens below, where every blossom was picked out hard and clear. The perfume was exquisite. She leaned farther out, breathing it down, vaguely stirred by the murmurous voice of the silver night. It seemed to need only the note of some strange instrument to make it an Arabian night, a night of adventure and gallantry to [illegible] of courtesies in cool courtyards, passionate whisperings behind harlequin lattices, the distant call of a flute rising and falling in an eerie minor key that would drive one frantic with longing.

Was Bob floating down stream from Water Falcon tonight? Nancy moved restlessly.

There were two people strolling along the path, a soldier and a young girl. How distinct was the crunch of their feet on the gravel. Their voices came up, very low.

Lovers? Nancy smiled. "Why not? I hope they are," she thought. "But it isn't fair to be a Peeping Tom like this. The darlings imagine themselves alone in the world." She looked away to where the glow of the sky indicated Montmartre beyond an infinitude of roofs. Lovers! How perfect it would be to float down stream tonight!

A sharp "Non, non, non!" in the girl's voice made her look down again quickly.

MIDDLE OF PATH

They were standing in the middle of the path. The soldier had his arm around the girl; with one hand she was pushing him away, her head back, resistance in every line of her.

Nancy turned hot to cover. It was Brimble again, and the big and Curly.

She wanted not to look. She wanted to go away from the window. And yet she wanted to see; she wanted to stay there. Everything that was civilized in her told her to go away. Everything that was primeval held here there.

The man's voice came low and insistent. Nancy stood rooted, her throat dry, her heart thumping.

The man was pulling her nearer, nearer.—Suddenly the girl gave a little cry, yielded, went into his arms, pressed against him, eagerly, hungrily, both her arms around him as though with desperate courage.

At last Nancy wrenched herself away from the window, white, shaking. All the little half-thoughts and dissimulations that for three months had just popped their heads up and gone again—of what he might have said when they turned away from the bronze boy together; of the way he had smiled when he held her hand at the station and said, "Good by, Nancy. See you again soon—I hope"; of his clothes and how he wore them, his hair and how he did it; his habit of stroking his chin between thumb and finger when he was thinking; the way he lit his pipe and blew out his match always with a long gray funnel of inhaled smoke—all these and a thousand more came rushing out of their limbo, assailed her with their real meaning, so that it stood out in her mind as starkly and clearly as the two people down below. Nothing was blurred any more. All her senses echoed with the shouted message. She wanted Bob like that!

For three months she had been a passive resister. For three months this truth had cowered and struggled for recognition. She had turned aside, switched her mind to something else, played with her truth. But the action of the girl down in the garden was like a spark to gunpowder. It was obvious that that girl had held back from the admission of her own desire until the strain was at breaking point since the violence of her yielding was almost terrible in its final candor.

STOOD QUIVERING

In that small of illac which she would never forget, Nancy stood there quivering. She saw herself and Bob, his mouth on hers, her heart thumping against his, their arms holding one another close.

Nancy closed her eyes in surrender.

The sober light of morning saw Nancy strolling up the Champs Elysees, with set face, seeing nothing, headed for nowhere in particular, anywhere, provided she kept on walking.

With the receding of the tide of emotion that had swept her away, her mind came into its own again, critical, revengeful even. Fool! Idiot! Weakling! were some of the epithets she hurled at herself. She drove herself on with the deliberate idea of punishing herself. She made no attempt to deny to herself that her yielding last night was just as much a fact as the French girl's. She had abandoned herself completely to the moment. The mere memory made her feel hot with discomfort, and yet in a savage sort of way she was glad that she had it was better than pretending, better than paying lids and neck with the truth. "I'm a woman," she said "and when you've said that you've said all there is to say!—And that's damn silly, too! You've only just begun. But at least last night [illegible] brought me out of my coma. I've been playing the fool with myself all the time. I'm not ashamed of last night. Why should I be? I'm young and outrageously [illegible]; but where the devil am I? Let's get down to this thing"

With the masculine expression that was the outcome of constant association with her father and which was second nature to her in heated moments, Nancy began to try and worry her way through. She asked herself bluntly if she hadn't been tricked by a combination of spring fever and perhaps a subconscious storing of jealousy of the physical attentions that Jean was always paying, in however tiny a way, to Cornelia. How could she be sure that all the time and not make some kind of response? If it were that, then she was doubly a fool to have let herself pin the results on Bob, a man whom she had only known for fourteen days. "Ah!" she said. "There you are—a man. Is that it? Is it Bob himself as an individual, or is it because he's a man who happened to come along just at the moment when I was ready to be attracted? How on earth do I know? How the devil can [illegible] disentangle this thing? Can one be in love with love? Is this a fever through which every girl—won't [illegible] goes the first time a man singles her out? How about Cornelia? She seems to be exempt; probably because she's acquired the technique of passing from one beau to another as casually as a butterfly from a rose bush to a syringa. She doesn't pretend to love any of them. Do I love Bob?" she sneered aloud. "Oh, rats! How could that question ever come up if I did? Wouldn't it be something fundamental in me? A quiet certainty, a sort of definite knowledge that would be absolute? In that case [illegible] I don't know! I don't know! I'll hate to see him again. Just one look at him and I'll know immediately if it's [illegible] I've fooled [illegible]"

[illegible] face with [illegible] Per surroundings [illegible] the studio across and curled herself up in the corner.

"Lor' [illegible] this thing has [illegible] drowsy [illegible] her eyes drooping. "Must [illegible] I don't want to, Bob [illegible] was asleep.

To be continued tomorrow.

When a Girl's in Love

"A Penny for Her Thoughts Shows This"

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

HERE was the pretty head of a flapper tilted back idly while its owner was surprisingly silent. It wasn't often that the little red tongue behind her white teeth was still. The hair was bobbed—a side-swiped bob—long on one side than the other. Her eyes were lifted shiningly like two glistening black jewels on infinite space. Her lips were smiling, dented deeply at the corners. Below the mouth was a soft chin. On each side of the head showed away under her short, soft hair were two ears—regular ears.

And the one who was gazing at this [illegible] thought, here was a clever head and face [illegible] be pondering on deeply and celestial subjects.

For though it was a regular face, it wasn't a face to look it had on it—it was the look of a reflected light from another world.

And it was—but not from the world the gazer thought.

He went to the old Mother of the Four Winds and from her son, the West Wind, he coaxed the gazing glass [illegible] you hold it close to a person's head and peer into it, shows you all the things that that person is thinking [illegible]

And he brought it back and held it where he could see the pretty bobbed head through it.

And the thoughts that he saw flying about in it as [illegible] were—just a young man's face and [illegible] Cupids—repeated over and over and over; Dan's and the young maid's, the young man's and Dan's! Every thought—and such a flutter of them—had the face of one or the other.

Nothing else. Not a thing [illegible] you see, the gazer hadn't known that she was in love!

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and you have best cough medicine you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. It tastes good, never spoils and gives you a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

CONDUCTED BY QUEEN OF THE BATTLE OFFICE

by Queen of Romance

DONT BE TOUCHY!

FOR goodness' sake don't let's be touchy! If we are, life becomes a burden and we are a constant nuisance to others. For touchiness springs from egotism and can be overcome by reason and common sense.

I was never touchy. I say to myself once and for all: No one can offend me. No one wants to offend me. Why should they? If I am on the lookout for offences I am giving people a thousand occasions to slight me.

We kings and queens suffer horribly from the touchiness of people, for to be slighted by royalty is for most a terrible disaster.

Once I had a touchy lady-in-waiting. Everything affronted her. She was always on her dignity, waiting to be offended. She was so afraid of not being treated with enough respect that she used quickly to jump into the carriage (this was before motors) before my guests, fearing to be asked to take a back seat.

I could never joke with her, never talk confidentially. I knew she was on the lookout for offence and it was prodigious how she created situations for others to hurt her feelings.

We had finally to part for even my patience, which is royally long, could not stretch sufficiently to live with her.

When you come into a room, be sure everybody is going to be nice to you. At least look as if you thought so. When you have a kindly attitude it needs really a nasty person to snub anyone who comes with a pleasant air and full of confidence.

You may say that as Queen I cannot understand the situation of another, that no one would try to snub or humiliate me. Perhaps . . . But when I was a little girl, I was sufficiently snubbed, you may believe me. Even in later years I had my bad moments. But I soon learnt that if one looks for snubs one is sure enough to get them.

MAKING A HUSBAND

By Ann Lisle

NATURALLY I'm not keen for lunching with Jim, but I might have done it to keep up appearances with Neal and old Bartly Tompkins because I don't want to be instrumental in cutting Jim off from a job that means prosperity for you. But since you've not counted on me, I'll arrange myself by calling for old Mrs. Crutkshank and giving her a little joy ride. So long, old dear; don't worry about me—I like your neighbors. Tood-oo

"JEANIE."

I tore the note in bits, because I didn't think it was decent to [illegible] the happy mood in which Jim had escorted me home.

Then I slipped into a lavender jersey sport dress which would be a comfortable costume in which to get supper and which would please Jim by bringing his "Miss Prim" vividly into the fore ground. When I was ready, I went to my handkerchief box to get a particularly pretty lavender and purple silk kerchief to loop under my collar. It was not there.

I went through several boxes, though I was sure of where I had put the kerchief. It was not to be found, and I felt puzzled at its disappearance, though not inclined to worry over silken trifles when I had so much cause for happiness and re[illegible]

"Jove, you look cute!" was Jim's comment, when I came out into the kitchen, where he was already putting the vegetables May Valleau had peeled and sliced on to boil. Then he stepped back and examined me with mock criticalness, which became real as he said

"You ought to wear a purple tie with that. It needs a dash of stronger color."

I laughed with appreciation of Jim's interest and good taste, as I said:

"I meant to wear a 'neckerchief,' but I couldn't find the one I wanted."

"Is my neat and tidy Anne getting careless?" asked Jim. "I thought you always had a place for everything and kept everything in its place."

"I have," I answered. "But I suppose Mary did a little extra straightening up and found a place so good that I can't locate the [illegible]

"You don't let that [illegible] through your fingers, do you?" Jim asked.

"I never told her to—or not to," I replied, carelessly. I suppose she is one of those faithful maids, who likes to find a few extra ways of showing interest and system."

So the matter of the tie was forgotten in the joy of getting our dinner together and basking in the coziness and contentment which are ours so often nowadays. And I didn't think of the tie again until after May Valleau had come and gone the next day. Then an odd little trifle brought it back to mind.

I was cutting down an old gold-colored satin dress into one of the smocks in which I like to work around the house. It occurred to me that the smock would be very pretty if I bordered the neck, sleeves and [illegible] with a bit of cream and gold brocaded ribbon shot with rose, which I had picked up at a remnant counter a few weeks before. I recalled with joy that the four yards of ribbon had been reduced from two dollars the yard to three dollars for the entire remnant, and I was [illegible] gloating that judicious cutting might permit me a border of it for each [illegible] all around the bottom of the smock. I went all the way through my ribbon and silk box before I realized that the brocaded ribbon had been wrapped in its original gray envelope and lying on the top of the box.

"Why, where is it?" I asked

THAT'S [illegible] papers [illegible] elite.

There is no better thing to put in news papers than food sile, I said Ma.

A lot you know a[illegible] sed Ma. You studdy [illegible] lesson sed Ma. I want one more [illegible] of this family to know sumthing else besides sports.

It will never hurt Bobbie to read about a helthy out door sport, sed Pa.

It won't help him any, either, sed Ma. Men are exacky like [illegible] sed Ma, a few of them put on [illegible] pants like little boys & all the rest of them read about the man in the short pants, sed Ma. It makes me barf, sed Ma. It is so low-life.

A little boy mite do worse than fotsiteck, sed Ma.

Prize fites & all them wulli-gar sports is dee-basing to the hewman fotsiteck, sed Pa.

That is not true, sed Pa. Sports is the Spice of life.

You used to and He use to [illegible] you, sed Pa.

I did, sed Ma. How [illegible]

Yes, you did, sed Pa. I reeme[illegible] her men we was first married you used me a Prince quite often, sed Pa. Of course, sed Pa. I was pritty flush with munny in them days, sed Pa.

The kids, sed Ma, as if that wud [illegible] any differan.

I will tell the wurld it makes a [illegible] sed Pa.

It has never made the sittest [illegible] to me sed Ma. I care for [illegible] sed Ma, not for yure vulgar munny. If it was munny I cared for, sed Ma, I wud care moar for you now than I cared for you when you was skidding thirty or forty dollars a week, sed Ma.

I guess Pa & Ma wud of gone on like that all nite but I told them to cut I tout so I oud reed my lesson & and they cut it out. But I guess Pa is right, munny makes sum difference.

DAILY SHORT STORY

[illegible] to me alone was accorded the privilege of knowing and understanding the real "inside"—as they say at [illegible] famous bourse because of [illegible] that the most marvelous [illegible] decided to attend his [illegible] transactio[illegible] that he was [illegible] or which way he turned, that [illegible] almost surely would be the market turn.

Luck For a Day

It was one dreary, drizzly Saturday afternoon when the wind howled around the Board of Trade caves like a thousand taunting devils — that Lucian espied me in a corner and came over to talk.

"Well, Silent," he began (Silent is my nickname) "How did you come out today?"

"With carefare." I assured him which seemed strangely enough, somehow to cheer him.

I had too [illegible] commis[illegible] that" exclaimed Lucian. "I mean, swear that you will tell no man while I live. I swore accordingly and he instructed me to call at his rooms in the Whitestone the following Sunday morning.

Upon presenting myself at the Whitestone on the day appointed, I was told to go around to the back door; and, presently, after much telephoning and suspicious surveillance by a maitre d'hotel, I was finally led, with a hushy hellboy on each side, to Lucian's quarters. He was waiting for me and we went downstairs immediately in a gold elevator and directly outside to a waiting limousine.

Lucian gave the driver some cryptic order and we were whisked up Michigan avenue to the North Side, through the North Side to the Ridge Road, and out the Ridge Road to a little town which I had never seen before. Through the little town we sped until, upon the outskirts, Lucian seemed to discover that for which he had been anxiously watching. Ordering the driver to stop we dismounted and approached a little shack the meanness and squalor of which it is hard for me even now to contemplate.

Lucian entered, with me at his heels, and proceeded to interview the occupants; and such a tale of woe —an old, gray-haired lady, with a [illegible] like an impacted tomato, told it rather effectively, to wit:

"Me man was killed by a revenue officer coupla months ago because he wouldn't split with him. Left me with eight kids, and this here shack not half paid for yet; the [illegible] had off on the mortgage for a long time, but they's gotta foreclose pretty soon if I don't pay 'em somethin. The kids ain't had a square meal for a month, and I'm sick to bed, ain't got the strength to climb outa me bed at all; and I ain't got no money to call me no doctor; and if I did have, I ain't got no money to buy me no medicine.

Lay and Die

"I guess I kin just lay here and die, without no doctor, and without no complications, though Lord knows I'd like to die respectable, with some decent disease named by a regular doctor—and the good Lord'll have to take care of me kids."

"What would you do if you had a little money?" suggested Lucian tantalizingly, but with his eyes twinkling.

"Lord, Lord!" moaned the woman as though suddenly sick with the pain of the beautiful vision she was having.

"Well," we'd on Lucian as though he were amply tickled to death, "I'm going to see that you're taken care of." And, most assuredly he did!

Routing the town banker out of his corner in a nearby golf club, he made him drive back with him and make out a receipt for the full amount due on the mortgage, which amount Lucian paid on the spot. Not satisfied with that, Lucian hunted up the best doctor in town and took him out to the woman's house. The doctor said there wasn't anything much the matter with her except malnutrition and the want of a good tonic to build her up. Lucian paid the doctor to make regular calls for the next month, gave him money for the tonic and -sold him on his way back to send one of the restaurant men out with what ever he thought the woman and the children ought to have to eat.

After that Lucian had a long talk with the woman about her offspring. It seemed that one of them was old enough to work, and wanted to work, but couldn't get any job. Lucian promised to take him to me, a man next week who would give him a position. Then Lucian estimated how much it would cost to keep the other children in school until such time as they were old enough to work. He arranged on the spot to transfer enough funds to the local bank to insure the old woman the small income necessary to meet her wants until the second oldest boy should be twenty-one and able to work. I wish you could have seen the change in that woman and that household when Lucian and I left.

His System

"That," explained Lucian to me on the way back to town, "is my system—that's all there is to it; every Sunday I hunt out someone; sometimes out in the country, sometimes in the city, who's badly up against it. I completely rehabilitate them and when I go down to the Board of Trade Monday morning, and all through the week....well, you've seen and remarked upon the result. It isn't much of a secret I'll admit; the whole of it is in Emerson's 'Compensation,' remember, I have your word...."

And I haven't broken my word in writing this, for the following Monday, after the incident which I have just related, Lucian was run over and killed by a truck in his excitement when he learned that a big combination had wiped him out. So, I'm afraid to play his system myself—but I've given you the facts for whatever you think they're worth; personally I'm using my old system. When the Eagle on Montgomery Ward's tower is turned toward the North I buy, and when it's turned toward the South I sell.

LUCIAN McBEANEATER.

Dear Miss Nutt:

Lest your applicants lose heart for fear that all the choice articles have been snatched from the marriage mart, let me hasten to enroll myself upon your list of Fall offerings. Only those seeking the acme of masculine charm need consider me. A man of culture and poise, schooled in the ways of the world, yet sensitive to the delicate refinements, I am, indeed, a diamond in the ruff. There is that indefinable something about me—that aroma de cognizandum as lacking in the men of commerce and yet rarer in the intelligensia. I will receive and interview applicants from 10 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. tomorrow on the penultimo steps.

DR. REED'S SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU read in the papers now and then that somebody has been treated by transfusion of blood.

That means that in the vein of a healthy person there has been inserted a hollow needle which is connected with a hollow tube, which is connected with another hollow needle which, in turn, is introduced into the vein of the suffering recipient.

It is through this simple apparatus that the blood flows in quantities varying from eight ounces to a pint or more from the donor to the recipient.

The chief occasion for transfusion is in cases of injury resulting in the loss of large quantities of blood. It is also used in certain wasting diseases.

The object is to furnish the patient with enough blood to keep up life until nature can come to the relief of the vital functions.

It is a procedure demanded by an emergency. There is no time to lose.

The danger in giving blood under these conditions is not, however, great. Instances are known where the same person has given blood for over one hundred transfusions without an appreciable effect, although somewhat surprisingly a gain in weight may take place under these conditions. The ordinary individual, asked for a casual transfusion, need fear no ill effects, either immediate or remote.

Transfusion is a frequent procedure, useful in a wide variety of conditions, which has established itself firmly as a means of treating diseases. While care is required in details, particularly in the selection of the donor of blood, it is a simple operative procedure which can be carried out without harm either to the person who gives the blood or the person who receives it.

A method sought for over-anxious beddies through centuries of medicine has passed through the stage of a startling new procedure, and now is a commonplace of treatment. But, however familiar we may be with the fact of transfusion, we must admire the trait in human nature which leads people to come forward, often with the apprehension natural to an unfamiliar and alarming procedure, to offer themselves in the service of others.

However unpleasant and forbidding it may seem, anxiety in regard to it is without real foundation.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"I GUESS I'll have to put on my other eyes," said I, taking my glasses out of the case and putting them on my nose. "Now if I have four eyes, perhaps I can see better to put this bait on the hook." Because we were fishing down in South America on a river in Brazil.

"I know a man who calls glasses cheaters," laughed Bobby.

"And I know a man who calls his false teeth snappers," chuckled Bunny.

"Men do have to bother with lots of funny things, don't they?"

"You would look funny with glasses on your nose, Bunny," I said.

"And imagine Bunny in the dentist's chair getting a new set of teeth!" roared Bobby. "Oh, I had a nibble on my line just then."

"I would certainly have to have a different model of glasses, wouldn't I?" queried Bunny, feeling his ears. "But my ears would surely hold them on."

We went on fishing and then we went on fishing some more. We had plenty of bites and nibbles, but we didn't land one single solitary fish for the longest time.

"We'd better go home," said I, pulling in my line.

"Oh! Foxy Grandpa," begged Bobby, "just a little longer."

"Yes," said Bunny. "You can't tell what you will pull out of this river."

"Well," said I, "we'll give it another half hour. Now see what you can do, Bobby. I'll have a smoke."

Fifteen minutes passed. Twenty. Twenty-five.

Bobby was getting fidgety now and bent his little shoulders forward in his anxiety to catch just one fish before he gave up.

Down went the pole and in Bobby reeled his line. A fish wiggled in the air for a moment and then in a jiffy Bobby landed him.

"What do you think of that?" shouted Bobby. "That fish has four eyes."

The fish did have four eyes—two on each side.

"He doesn't have to put on cheaters," I laughed. "I wonder what the reason for that is."

"Throw him overboard and you'll see," said Bunny.

Overboard Bobby threw his prize and off he swam. But as he left the side of the boat we could see that only the upper eyes of the two pairs showed above the water—one on each side.

"Now you see the idea," explained Bunny. "That fellow swims mostly with part of his head out of the water. And with those two sets of eyes he can see over and under the water at the same time."

"My, that must be convenient," murmured Bobby, taking his fishing-rod apart.

FINANCE

By B. C. FORBES

The newspapers didn't report the most interesting incident of all at the banquet President Coolidge attended in New York last week.

When the President entered the vast assemblage accorded him a cordial reception, a very cordial reception. Before the speech-making began, Mrs. Coolidge appeared in the balcony. Instantly, the chorus and diners were on their feet cheering lustily. Mrs. Coolidge smiled and bowed and smiled and bowed. The cheering continued. Then came the hit of the whole occasion.

In response to the prolonged cheering, she tossed her hand into the air and waved it towards the crowd with all the gusto and abandon of a tray-bearer at a holiday.

This brought down the house.

"Isn't she a regular fellow?" "She's a corker." "She surely is one of the boys."

These and similar comments sprang from every table. Her warm, unaffected, "undignified" way of doing will restore won the hearts of all. As the quiet kirk elder said when the little minister was roguishly kissing his sweetheart, admittedly a shocking proceeding, "man, but it was awfu' human."

* * *

A workingman, criticizing what was said in this column the other day about employers taking an interest in their people and impressing upon each man the importance of his work, declares in language more emphatic than polite that all workers want from their employers is money. "Money talks!" he exclaims. "To — with bunk!"

This world's doubtless is sincere, and many other workers are doubtless sincere, in believing that all they want from employers is more pay.

The truth, of course, is that money alone never made and never can make a worker or anyone else entirely happy. Nobody ever will be, by unless treated half-way decently, half-way considerately, half-way politely by others, particularly by those in authority. Nobody ever does down in his demands that we be treated like human beings, that our feelings be given consideration, that our self-respect be not hurt.

* * *

The wise employer of today and the wise employer of tomorrow will not treat workers as pieces of machinery, but as human beings made of the finer flesh and blood possessing the same sentiments and souls as themselves.

SHORT SELLING IS VERY HEAVY IN MOTORS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Short selling has been very heavy in the motor group as recently pointed out in this column. The writer is told that Jesse Livermore, former Boston "market wizard," started the bear drive on this group some time ago, and that, as far as known, he has not yet begun to cover any of his short lines. The big bears in Wall have concentrated attacks on three of the motors, and the decline of these has dragged the rest of the motor list along with them.

Boston & Maine issues on the Boston Stock Exchange make up a small stock list in themselves. Probably no other railroad in the world has as many different classes and sorts of stocks dealt in. There have been admitted to trading on the local exchanges recently for the prior preference stock 100 per cent. paid and the 6 per cent. scrip of the Boston & Maine Railroad, as per reorganization plan. In addition to these are the old common, preferred, class A, class B, class C, class D and class E and besides all these the "stamped" issues of practically all of them.

"What the country needs," remarked the Old State Street trader, "is another Jesse Livermore, and there are want from their employers is money. 'Money talks!' he exclaims. "To — with bunk!"

This world's doubtless is sincere, and many other workers are doubtless sincere, in believing that all they want from employers is more pay.

The truth, of course, is that money alone never made and never can make a worker or anyone else entirely happy. Nobody ever will be, by unless treated half-way decently, half-way considerately, half-way politely by others, particularly by those in authority. Nobody ever does down in his demands that we be treated like human beings, that our feelings be given consideration, that our self-respect be not hurt.

The wise employer of today and the wise employer of tomorrow will not treat workers as pieces of machinery, but as human beings made of the finer flesh and blood possessing the same sentiments and souls as themselves.

(Copyright, 1925, by B. C. Forbes)

Although early this year President Jackling stated that Butte & Superior's mine would be closed down, and put at the end of 1925, the stock has shown strength. A local broker last week had an order to buy 2,000 shares at 12¾, the stock opened at 15¾ and his 2,000 shares were quickly taken.

While Butte & Superior's present producing properties have a very limited "life," on known reserves, these ore reserves are today as high as at the end of 1924, notwithstanding 10 months' production. Developments on the 2,000 and 3,000-foot level have put in sight additional ore that on present metal prices permits profitable operation. With zinc 8½ cents, as now, and silver almost 70 cents an ounce, Butte & Superior is making money. In the first nine months of this year it earned $1.27 a share on its 200,000 shares, and she did not have its piles bulge up till the late Summer.

At the close of 1924 Butte & Superior had net quick assets—cash, securities and ore—equivalent to $7 a share and it is safe to say this figure has not been greatly reduced during 1925.

It is the intention of the management to continue dividends at the present rate of 50 cents quarterly as long as profits come within hailing distance of that rate.

Monkeys and Evolution

What Earnest Expressions

This is the macaque, a monkey from India, his wife sitting in front of him. You can just make out the nursing baby in the mother's arms.

This picture, taken in a zoological garden, interests scientists. It is the first time in many years that the Indian rhesus, or macaque, has had offspring in captivity.

Those who believe in evolution allege that in the anxious face of the mother, as she holds her young one, and in the suspicious, angry face of the father, close behind her, they see the BEGINNING OF THOUGHT, more highly developed in man.

Others, guided by the strong light of faith, will say: "That's all nonsense. EVERY animal takes care of its young. Providence arranged it so. Animals care for their young in an ANIMAL way, human beings in a totally DIFFERENT way."

In any case, this is an interesting picture of parental affection. The parents, in earnest concentration on their young, set an example to many humans.

'I Dreamed of You Last Night'

Money and Love, They Make the World Go Round, and Go Queerly

You read, perhaps, some of the strange, illiterate letters made evidence in a lawsuit by which a young man, "aristocratic" so they say, and palpably of rather feeble mind, seeks to separate himself from a wife who has African blood in her veins.

If you have a sympathetic soul, you hope that the young man will succeed in getting a separation for the sake of his wife.

Did you notice a small paragraph meaning much in one letter, as follows:

"I dreamed of you last night and how you loved me, and you gave me piles and piles brand new ten-dollar bills. But you could not give me enough of them, and every one of them were brand new." (The grammar is not ours.)

There you have, kind friends, the two mainsprings in our so-called "civilization," LOVE and MONEY, "new ten-dollar bills, every one of them brand new."

Richard Lovelace wrote:

> "If I have freedom in my love,
> And in my soul am free;
> Angels alone that soar above
> Enjoy such liberty."

If he were living now they would change it to read: "If I have brand new ten-dollar bills, etc."

We are, the majority of us, about as primitive as we ever were.

The ancient cave lady dreamed of love and brand new bear teeth of which she could make a necklace. The lady of today dreams of love and brand new ten-dollar bills. The bills of course are to buy finery, the "bear teeth" of our day.

But do not hastily conclude that women are mercenary, or that our natures are "all wrong."

In every mind the "love" and the "brand new ten-dollar bills" are knit apart. And, in both attractions, nature works wisely. Love is the power that creates the new generation to carry on the work of the human race. And the "brand new ten-dollar bills" represent AMBITION, the desire for SOMETHING BETTER, that keeps us working and struggling.

Natives of the South Sea Islands, swimming in the warm water, eating cocoanuts and other things growing wild, never make any progress, and he and she had no brand new ten-dollar bills. They loved each other of course, but they always remained savages.

In civilization there is LOVE, PLUS THE BRAND NEW TEN-DOLLAR BILLS that build houses, baths, create public parks, buy automobiles and generally make life worth while. Respect the brand new ten-dollar bill. It is an emblem of progress.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THIS is November 26th, and is known all over the United States as National Knife and Fork Day.

IT'S a great time for rejoicing and everybody's happy except the turkeys.

ONE gobbler said he didn't mind getting the axe in the neck because that was the only way he could get rid of his dandruff.

ANOTHER bird said he didn't care either as he had a sore throat anyway.

AN axe always brings quicker relief than a congedron.

HATCHETS stop headaches sooner than aspirin.

NO matter how calm and collected a turkey may be, he always loses his head on Thanksgiving.

AS far as the turkeys are concerned, they wish our forefathers had stayed in England.

IT would have been better for them if the Plymouth Rock had landed on the pilgrims.

THE minute they stepped off the boat they got hungry.

THE pilgrims gave thanks prayed and then killed a turkey, but they didn't give the turkey any chance to say his prayers.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

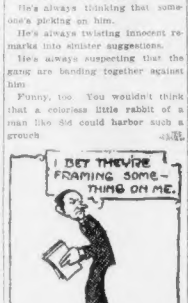
THE men in the office say that Sid is a sore head.

He's always thinking that someone's picking on him.

He's always twisting innocent remarks into sinister suggestions.

He's always suspecting that the gang are banding together against him.

Funny, too. You wouldn't think that a colorless little rabbit of a man like Sid could harbor such a grouch.



Quiet, hard working sort of a cuss—doesn't seem to have any great amount of ambition—just trudges along in the same old rut, year after year, without making any stir. The kind of a fellow the boss can always depend on but that the rest of the gang never notices.

And yet, to hear him talk you'd think the whole office was hot on his trail and that there was a reward offered for him, dead or alive, preferably dead.

Lots of offices have chaps like Sid. Sorehead.

Lots of homes have sore heads, too. There's one in every social circle.

Nearly always they're the same type as Sid—quiet, colorless people, seemingly without much ambition, but stealth hard workers in their particular groove. Often extremely finicky about their work although their fondness and steadiness never seem to get them anywhere.

Nobody has anything against them. They are seldom noticed. Yet they're everlastingly thinking they've been insulted or nursing grouches.

Resentment and egotism, both of these are at fever heat under the colorless exterior. On the degree of that heat depends the man's sanity or insanity. Many a danger, many insane man is merely a Sore Head with his persecution ideas aggravated and exaggerated until they have flamed beyond control. He may still seem the colorless, obscure, careful worker but in reality he is a maniac in ambush, waiting for his chance to be revenged upon a society that has passed him by.

Don't take the Sorehead lightly. Don't permit your own head to develop soreness. Keep your ego and your resentments in check, as you would check two wild beasts, lest they turn and rend you.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland.

Copyright, 1925, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Helen Rowland

MY daughter, there be two things of which I marvel; nay, three which are wonderful unto me.

The way of a ship in the air, the way of a submarine under the sea, and the way of a shop clerk with a woman.

Also, where will those fine gallantry, in a world full of sheiks and college cut-ups?

Go to the Shoe Clerk, thou Simple Soul! Consider his ways and be satisfied.

For, in all the Land, he is the only man that goeth down on his knees to a woman!

Verily, knighthood hath passed away, and Sir Walter Raleigh is no more; yet is there One Man left who delighteth to serve the Fair Sex and sitteth at its feet!

Behold, all his ways are full of tactfulness, and his tongue is full of flattery.

His tongue drippeth honey—but his eyes speak not his secret thoughts.

He perceiveth not the hole in the toe nor the darn in the heel. He is blind to the wrinkles upon the beefy ankle.

Knees are no nothing in his life, and a pair of calves no more disturbing than a pair of salt-shakers!

His is so discreet!

TEN REMARKABLE PEOPLE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LAST Winter in New York a play was produced at the Neighborhood Playhouse called "The Little Clay Cart."

It was an Oriental play that had been written and first produced over a thousand years before.

Yet the modern Twentieth Century New York, used to hanging on to subway straps and listening to music over the radio, understood, enjoyed and was moved by the same acts and words that appealed to the people of an ancient land but a little while after Haroun-al-Raschild was Caliph of Bagdad.

Human nature is similar not only from age to age, but in different lands and localities.

O. Henry said of his stories dealing with human nature in New York that you could rub out Fourth Avenue and put in Main Street and it wouldn't hurt the story a bit.

This universality of human nature was brought home to me again the other day by a little pamphlet containing among other things a humorous list of ten remarkable people.

The pamphlet was published by an undertaker in a small country town in Indiana. But notice how true to human nature the world over the examples are. They might just as well have been observed in New York or San Francisco as in an Indiana town.

The ten remarkable people are:

1—The man who laughs heartily or quotes a verse of Scripture when the soap slips out of his hand and slides under the bathtub.

2—The wife who has not figured out just how much her husband could save if he quit smoking.

3—The man who, when the lower drawer of the dresser sticks, does not give it a kick.

4—The woman who is perfectly satisfied with her portrait, her complexion, or her figure.

5—The city dweller who has never cherished the belief that he could become independently rich on a chicken ranch.

6—The man whose home-made radio set does not have a regular receiving range of at least 1,500 miles.

7—The woman who, when there are fresh peaches for dinner, does not remind the men folks that peach stains won't come out.

8—The husband who put up the screens the first time his wife told him to.

9—The wife who refrains from telling her husband how "crazy" he was about her before they were married.

10—The wife who believes implicitly that her husband promptly mails all the letters she gives him to post.

CARBON DIOXIDE AS LIFE PRESERVER

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE unexpectedness with which many discoveries come upon us is strikingly illustrated by Professor Yandell Henderson's new method of restoring persons who have been suffocated by asphyxiating gas or in other ways.

Who would have guessed that the same gas—carbon dioxide—which is capable of killing if allowed to accumulate in the lungs, may also be used to restore breathing, and so life?

It is one of those cases in which a little poison acts as a beneficent agent, though in larger quantities the same poison is mortal in its effects. Carbon dioxide is always present in the breath exhaled by a living person. If many persons are crowded together in a close room the exhaled carbon dioxide gas eventually collects to such an extent that it may produce fainting, and in extreme cases, death.

Gradually Burned

The life-sustaining Axygen in the air is gradually burned up by combination with carbon from the body, and so the atmosphere becomes surcharged with the deleterious gas.

And yet a certain amount of this same gas, as Professor Henderson has found, is needed in the lungs and the blood to stimulate the nervous centers that control the operation of breathing. And, on the other hand, too much oxygen—enough in the life-sustaining element per excellence—may in some cases, have as fatal effects as too much carbon dioxide, for, says Professor Henderson, if pure oxygen is given to a person who has been partially suffocated the respiratory nerve centers may be depressed to such a degree that the person will cease to breathe at all. This may happen even when only fresh air is given, unless at the same time the nerve centers are stimulated by the presence of a proper amount of carbon dioxide.

Upon such delicate adjustments our lives, in certain emergencies, depend. Contending elements keep us alive. That which seems the especial friend of life becomes, in some contingencies, effectively, its most dangerous foe; while the other element, which we usually regard as solely inimical, apparently changes its character, and steps in, if allowed, to save the threatened life.

How many lives have been sacrificed to ignorance! How many loved ones have been unwittingly slain by mistaken efforts made to preserve them! But how know the truth when it comes in so deceptive shapes? How guess that, while this much poison will kill this lesser quantity will save life?

Here is where the infinite value of true research becomes manifest. Professor Henderson and his associate, Dr. H. W. Hazard, by research of that kind, in their laboratory at Yale, have discovered what no guessing would have led to. And they have put the results of their research into immediate practical use by means of an apparatus, to be employed in cases of suffocation, or respiratory failure of any kind, whereby about 5 per cent. of carbon dioxide is automatically supplied to the patient, together with the air used to restore his breathing.

Deep Breathing

It is "deep breathing" that is called into play in this method of treatment. This is explained by Professor Henderson's statement that the reason why we breathe deeply after any severe bodily exertion is because the extra muscular exercise has burned up an unwonted quantity of fuel in the body, thus causing a certain accumulation of carbon dioxide, which, by its stimulating centers produces deep, strong breathing.

Walk rapidly up a hill and your heart and lungs become like pumps driven to their utmost capacity. The lungs draw in, by long pulls, fresh air, with its oxygen, to feed the depleted furnace, but it is the stimulation from the carbon dioxide produced by the preceding combustion that sets the lungs working harder.

In artificial respiration this essential agent must not be overlooked. Fresh air, or oxygen, alone cannot stimulate the nerve centres that drive the machine of life.

Three Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

THE barbecue—as typical an institution of the South and Middle West as the clambake is of Rhode Island and points of Boston. In fact, almost every locality of our country can boast its own favorite food and method of serving that food.

But the barbecue originated in Georgia. From there it spread all through the southern States, and even to the Southwestern and Middle Western States. And its popularity increases as it spreads to new territory.

This peculiar type of entertainment has played its part in every form of activity. It is used in political campaigns, in social life, in business. Many a man has gained his popularity as an employer and as office-holder by the lavishness of his barbecue entertainments.

Nobody knows just how the barbecue originated. But that it had existed for more than a hundred years is proved by allusions in history. There are even tales of bargains with the Indians sealed with barbecue viands.

This barbecue is nothing more than a huge open-air entertainment, either social or political at which sheep or oxen are roasted whole. Hundreds of people can be fed at a single barbecue and things are always conducted on a gigantic scale.

Originally, it seems the meat cooked in the barbecue was game, such as deer and bear but as these animals became scarce, sheep, pigs and oxen took their place. Today almost any type of food may be used in the barbecue. Fish, beef, mutton, pork, chicken, duck, vegetables, especially potatoes and corn on the cob, all are used in the barbecue.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "THE GREATEST ALLURE"

The most SEDUCTIVE thing
In LIFE is
NOT a woman,
Nor A MAN, but
Something that MAY belong
To BOTH! or EITHER
To EACH or NEITHER
It depends ENTIRELY on
The INDIVIDUAL
But who ever
POSSESSES this fire!
Essential of seductiveness—
Possesses also WEALTH,
Power and ALLURE.
In A MAN it makes
An IMMEDIATE APPEAL
To ALL women;
In a GIRL it draws
MEN TO HER as
Inevitably as a MAGNET
Draws STEEL.
It is PRICELESS, yet
Men and women BOTH
Pay FORTUNES to keep
It, or REGAIN it.
It is POWERFUL.
For with it EVERY THING is possible;
WITHOUT IT, even
LOVE DISAPPEARS.
And this great asset
Is simply Glowing, glorious
HEALTH.

DON'T SPARE CHILD BECAUSE YOU HAD HARD TIME

IN your desire to make life easy and enjoyable for your children don't you allow them to avoid the very things which made you grow up self-reliant, industrious and thoughtful.

You had a hard young life and you want to spare your child. The stress of necessity made you work, study and plan so constantly that you had little time for play on Easy Street.

You realize that otherwise you might have indulged a lazy, luxury-loving disposition, but stark necessity kept you hard at it.

You remember the real suffering it was to you to go without the things your friends had, you resolve that your children shall not have that sad recollection.

But look out that you do not spoil them.

Do not grant their requests for pleasure you know would be harmful because you always wanted that certain thing and found it impossible.

If being strict in certain ways is hard for you, because you love your child, love your child a little more and you will do what is best for him.
